ATOMIC BOMB TO WIPE OUT JAPAN

Blast Exceeds Power Of 20,000 Tons TNT

U. S. Solves Atom Secret In Bomb to End Jap War

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—An atomic bomb, hailed as the most terrible destructive force in the world and as the greatest achievement of organized science, has been loosed upon Japan. President Truman disclosed in a White House statement today the first use of the bomb—containing more power than 20,000 tons of TNT and producing more than 2000 times the blast of the most powerful bomb ever dropped before—was made 16 hours earlier on Hiroshima, Japanese army base. [Earlier in the day Tokyo radio had announced Hiroshima was raided at 8:20 a. m. Monday (7:20 p. m. Sunday Eastern war time). The broadcast made no mention of any unusual destruction. It reported only that "a small number of American B-29s attacked the city on southwestern Honshu with incendiary and explosive bombs.] The atomic bomb is the answer, President Truman said, to Japan's refusal to surrender. Secretary of War Stimson predicted the bomb would "prove a tremendous aid" in shortening the Japanese war.

(In other official Washington circles, it was immediately conjectured that use of the new bomb might mean Japan would surrender without necessity of an invasion by American troops.—Editor's note.)

Mr. Truman grimly warned that "even more powerful forms (of the bomb) are in development." He said:

"If they do not now accept our terms, they may expect a rain of ruin from the air the like of which has never been seen on this earth."

The War Department reported that "an impenetrable cloud of dust and smoke" cloaked Hiroshima after the first atomic bomb crashed down. It was impossible to make an immediate assessment of the damage.

President Truman said he would recommend that Congress consider establishing a commission to control production of atomic power within the United States, adding:

"I shall . . . make . . . recommendations to Congress as to how atomic power can become a powerful and forceful influence toward the maintenance of world peace."

Both Mr. Truman and Secretary Stimson, while emphasizing the peacetime potentiality of the new force, made clear much research must be undertaken to effect full peacetime application of its principles.

The product of $2,000,000,000 spent in research and production—"the greatest scientific gamble in history," Mr. Truman said—the atomic bomb has been one of the most closely guarded secrets of the war.

Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill gave the signal to start work on harnessing the forces of the atom. Mr. Truman said the Germans worked feverishly, but failed to solve the problem.

Mr. Truman added:

"It is an atomic bomb. It is a harnessing of the basic power of the universe. The force from which the sun draws its power has been loosed against those who brought war to the Far East."

The base that was hit is a major quartermaster depot and has large ordnance, machine tool and aircraft plants.

The city of 318,000 also contains a principal port.

The President disclosed the Germans "worked feverishly" in search of a way to use atomic energy in their war effort but failed. Meantime American and British scientists studied the problem and developed two principal plants and some lesser factories for the production of atomic power.

The President disclosed that more than 65,000 persons now are working in great secrecy in these plants, adding:

"We have spent $2,000,000,000 on the greatest scientific gamble in history—and won.

"We are now prepared to obliterate more rapidly and completely every productive enterprise the Japanese have above ground in any city. We shall completely destroy Japan's power to make war."

The President noted the Big Three ultimatum issued July 26 at Potsdam was intended "to spare the Japanese people from utter destruction" and the Japanese leaders rejected it. The atomic bomb now is the answer to that rejection and the President said "they may expect a rain of ruin from the air, the like of which has never been seen on this earth."

Mr. Truman forecast sea and land forces will follow up this air attack in such numbers and power as the Japs never have witnessed.

The President said that this discovery may open the way for an entirely new concept of force and power.

Halifax Blast but 7th Bomb's Fury

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (AP)—A faint idea of the power within the atomic bomb:

On June 6, 1917, a munitions ship blew up in a collision in Halifax, N. S., harbor; 1500 persons were killed, 4000 injured, 20,000 made homeless, two and one-half square miles of the city devastated.

That munitions ship carried 3000 tons of TNT—about one-seventh of the equivalent of the new bomb.

Secret of Sun Rays in Bomb

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Sciece Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (AP)—President Truman's statement that the atomic bomb is made of the force from which the sun draws its power explains the principle of this new explosive.

The Sun's power is the Sun's heat. For years scientists have known that this heat could not come from ordinary fires like any known on the Earth's face. The Sun just wasn't big enough to have lasted the billions of years during which there is plenty of evidence it has been burning at the present rate.

In ordinary fire, molecules of wood, coal or whatever else is blazing, separate. As they come apart, the energy which held them together is released in the form of heat, light and other rays, like X-rays. Even a hot fire gives off a bit of X-ray.

The sun burns not by separation of molecules but by two much more intensely hot methods. One is the atoms that form molecules separating from each other. This kind of separation releases incredibly greater amounts of heat and energy than molecule separations.

But an even greater source of sun power is the fact that the atoms themselves come apart to some extent. These atoms are made of electrons, protons and other electrical and non-electrical particles.

For many years scientists have been able to disintegrate atoms in laboratories. There were no explosions, because billions of atoms would have to go off at one time, even to equal a firecracker. The reason is that atoms are so exceedingly tiny.

President Truman's announcement gives no clue to the method of producing the atomic bomb.

The atomic bomb hunt started right after the war began when a German mathematician, a Jewish woman, Lize Meitner, calculated that something which had puzzled scientists for 10 years was really an explosion of atoms of one of the kinds of the metal uranium.

Within two weeks after she published this calculation the great physicis laboratories in the United States, England and Germany had verified her prediction. She was banished from Germany shortly afterward, but Hitler put all available physicists to work on atomic bombs and atomic power at the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute, Berlin.

What the scientists found was that a rare form of uranium, known as 235, when bombarded with low electrical energy (in the form of neutron rays) would react by splitting some of its atoms almost squarely in two.

When uranium atoms split in two, as the German woman predicted, a whole new world opened for atomic power. The energy released by an atom breaking in two was thousands of times greater than the energy when just a few pieces were chipped off.

This new situation started the United States and Britain on a hunt for atomic power and atomic bombs, and even before the United States entered the war, all this atomic work was placed under censorship. Since then not a single development has been published, until today's bomb announcement.

Truman Bomb Statement

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Following is the text of the statement by President Truman announcing the use of an atomic bomb for the first time in history:

Sixteen hours ago an American airplane dropped one bomb on Hiro Shima, an important Japanese army base. That bomb had more power than 20,000 tons of TNT. It had more than 2000 times the blast power of the British "Grand Slam" which is the largest bomb ever yet used in the history of warfare.

The Japanese began the war from the air at Pearl Harbor. They have been repaid many fold. And the end is not yet. With this bomb we have now added a new and revolutionary increase in destruction to supplement the growing power of our armed forces. In their present form these bombs are now in production and even more powerful forms are in development.

It is an atomic bomb. It is a harnessing of the basic power of the universe. The force from which the sun draws its power has been loosed against those who brought war to the Far East.

Before 1939, it was the accepted belief of scientists that it was theoretically possible to release atomic energy. But no one knew any practical method of doing it.

By 1942, however, we knew that the Germans were working feverishly to find a way to add atomic energy to the other engines of war with which they hoped to enslave the world. But they failed. We may be

Churchill Tells Nazi Atomic Plan

LONDON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Germany possessed some atomic power secrets, Winston Churchill said tonight, but "by God's mercy British and American science outpaced all German efforts."

Nazi efforts to develop an atomic bomb "were on a considerable scale but were far behind," he said in a statement issued by Prime Minister Attlee.

Churchill reported Norwegian and British Commando volunteers in 1942-43 raided at heavy loss of life Norwegian stores of "heavy water, an element in one of the possible processes."

The result of the war might have been altered, he declared, if the Germans had possessed atomic power.

"Profound anxiety was felt by those who had been informed" of German efforts, he added.

Sailor Held, Denies Locket-Girl Slaying

A Navy cook with three Pacific battle stars, his left knuckles still bruised by an injury he claimed he suffered when he struck a juke box, was booked at Lowell police headquarters today on a charge of murder in the death of Mrs. Mary George Saunders, whose skeletal remains were found last Wednesday in a Dracut woodland.

The sailor was booked as Alphee N. Desmaris, 22, of Kendall rd., Tyngsboro, but that address, according to Dist. Atty. George E. Thompson, is the summer home of his mother. His regular address is in Vine st., Nashua.

Desmaris was arraigned on the murder charge before Judge Arthur L. Eno in Lowell district court and pleaded not guilty. At the request of Dist. Atty. Thompson, he was ordered held without bail and the case was continued to Sept. 8.

His mother, Mrs. Alexina Desmaris, was near collapse when she learned of his arrest.

"I can't believe it,' she moaned repeatedly. "He couldnt have done it. He is innocent. He has always been such a good boy."

The sailor, a cook, second class, was picked up last night at the Fargo barracks in South Boston, where he was a prisoner-at-large as a result of a minor infraction of naval regulations.

A Navy spokesman in Boston said Desmaris told the executive officer at the Fargo barracks on Saturday that he had some information on the case and wanted to talk to the investigators.

As a result, State Police were notified and an emergency furlough was granted to the youthful sailor, who left the barracks with the state detectives.

Taken first to the Andover State Police barracks, he was questioned for several hours before being brought to Lowell for further questioning by State Detectives Joseph C. Crescio and James Conniff and Dracut Police Chief Vincent O'Leary.

During the questioning Desmaris was confronted by two girl friends of the victim and identified by them as the man they had last seen with her. When he questioned their identifications, they described the clothing he wore and his actions as he helped her into an auto.

The pair, Anne Drenas, 26, a close friend, and Mrs. Irene Maraganis, a cousin, both of Lowell, insisted the suspect was driving an auto that night. Throughout the questioning, he denied having an auto.

Thompson declared the two young women, and two others whose identities he refused to divulge, would be principal witnesses in the case, which will be presented to the Middlesex grand jury when it convenes next September 4.

Shortly after 8 a. m., Dist. Atty. Thompson, who had been summoned to the questioning, ordered him booked on the murder charge, with Chief O'Leary as the complainant.

According to Thompson, the sailor told questioners he first met Mrs. Saunders in a Lowell tavern with another girl some time last June while he was home on furlough after three years of naval service.

Desmaris said he went out with her three or four times prior to the evening of July 8.

On that night, according to his story, he met her at the Lowell railroad station, where he said he found her sitting in a taxicab.

He told questioners he entered the cab with her and they drove around the city for a short time before they decided to go to the Lakeview Inn in Dracut.

Leaving the cab, he said, they boarded a bus and went to the inn, where they sat at a table and drank beer.

He recalled that the inn had a swimming pool and that they spent some time watching the bathers disport in the water while they sat at their table drinking beer.

After a time, he said, the woman told him she would like to go home but he wanted to stay a while longer.

He said they had some words about it and that finally she arose from the table and left him. He asserted he remained at the table and, as far as he knew, she left the place and went home. He said he had not seen her since.

He said he was on a 30-day furlough at the time and admitted he was wearing civilian clothing on the evening in question.

The clothing he was wearing is in the hands of State police, Thompson said, and at present is being examined by chemists.

Thompson said prelminiary examination showed no telltale marks or stains on the clothing.

The district attorney said the knuckles on Desmaris' left hand were badly bruised and that the sailor claimed he had suffered the injury some time between July 8 and 13, when his furlough ended, when he struck a juke box a heavy blow to start it operating after it failed to react when he put money into it.

Thompson said checkup was being made with Naval authorities to determine whether Desmaris had sought treatment for the injury when he reported back from his furlough.

During the questioning, Desmaris was quoted as saying he was friendly with and "practically engaged" to a Nashua girl and that there had been no romance between him and Mrs. Saunders.

Thompson ordered him booked after checking several alibis the sailor had given during the questioning.

"We're not interested in questioning him further," Thompson said as the youth was booked on the charge of murder. "We feel the conflicting stories he has told are sufficient evidence as far as the state is concerned."

Thompson said investigators were convinced the youth had a date with Mrs. Saunders on the night of July 8 and that their meeting at the Lowell railroad was not accidental.

He said the investigation disclosed that Desmaris had gone to Washington July 6 with his Nashua girl friend and returned alone the following day to Lowell.

First break in the case as far as Desmaris involvement in it was concerned came Saturday night when Miss Drenas, brought back from Framingham, where she had been visiting, told police of seeing Mrs. Saunders with a sailor in civilian clothing between 7 and 8 p. m. on the night of July 8.

Previously investigators had established 2 a. m. on that day as the last time Mrs. Saunders was seen alive.

Miss Drenas said the couple were in a Buick auto.

Miss Drenas said she was unable to identify the sailor, except by sight, but furnished the name of a young woman, who, she said, was with Mrs. Saunders when she and the sailor first met.

The latter, Miss Helen Maraganis, no relation to the victim's cousin, told police of being with Mrs. Saunders when they first met Desmaris, and said she also had seen them together on the evening of July 8.

Irene Maraganis previously had informed investigators that the victim had told her she had a date with the same sailor for the evening of July 7.

During questioning Helen told investigators she saw Desmaris about three weeks ago in the Merrimack Hotel bar and asked him about Mrs. Saunders, whom she had not seen since the night of July 8. She quoted him as saying:

"Leave me alone. I've had enough of her."

Desmaris, who was taken to East Cambridge jail after his arraignment, is single and enlisted in the Navy three years ago. He served in the Pacific area and his campaign ribbons bear three battle stars.

He spent his 30-day furlough at the Tyngsboro summer home of his mother. His father, formerly a well known ice dealer in

4 Warned Jap Cities in Ashes

By Associated Press

American airmen said they turned four more forewarned Japanese cities to ashes today as 750 Superforts and Mustang fighters reportedly swept the enemy's sacred islands with fire bombs, rockets and parachute mines. B-29 crewmen returning to Marianas island bases told of setting fires visible for 150 miles. Some ran into intense anti-aircraft fire and strong interception, including rocket planes, as they raided cities Tokyo described as "defenseless."

Waves of B-29s from the Marianas and Mustang fighters from Iwo Jima struck as U. S. commanders announced 70 Nipponese ships and small craft and 61 locomotives were destroyed or damaged in previous aerial blows, reaching over 4500 miles from Paramushiro to Singapore.

Tokyo radio reported a small force of superforts raided Hiroshima, 20 miles northwest of Kure on Honshu, dropping incendiaries and explosive bombs.

Terror-ridden China carried the brunt of ground actions. Elsewhere land armies hunted for Jap generals in the northern Philippines, drove toward trapping the largest Japanese force remaining in New Guinea and counted 13,000 Jap dead in recent fighting in monsoon—swept south Burma.

Superforts warned 12 more cities Sunday they were on their fire list. A formation of 580 followed up today by lighting towering fires in four of the 31 forewarned cities.

Today's targets include Nishinomiya, noted in prewar days for producing Japan's best sake, favorite alcoholic beverage of Nippon. The other industrial targets were Maebishi, 60 miles from Tokyo; Saga on northern Honshu, and Imbari, on southern Honshu. One B-29 unit hammered the Ube coal liquefaction plant with high explosives.

Japanese also reported Mustangs from Iwo raked the capital with rockets, bombs and machine-gun bullets in daylight for the third time in four days.

Nine Mustangs were lost in strikes Friday and Sunday. Both raids were made by about 100 planes. They accounted for 12 enemy planes, 24 locomotives and small boats, and hammered military installations.

Twenty Mitchell bombers from Okinawa, grounded for two days by bad weather, rode the tail of a typhoon Saturday over Southern Japan. They hit the rail center of Takanabe so hard that rear echelons "flew through thick smoke and flying wreckage." Pilots said they saw a chemical plant "lift up and fall apart."

Seven Philippine-based Lightning fighters struck for the first time at the former Dutch naval base of Soerabaja on Java, refueling on Borneo. They destroyed 37 tomomotives.

Primary Japanese concern was over the B-29s, which Tokyo Radio said were raining fire bombs on "defenseless" smaller cities "for the sole purpose of massacring as many innocent civilians as possible."

Among these "defenseless" cities was Toyama, leading aluminum producing city on the Japan Sea, whose industrial area B-29 headquarters said was "totally destroyed" in the record raid Thursday.

Chinese reports told of new terror in China. Once-beautiful Kweilin, former Southeast China air base city, was left thoroughly sacked. Fifty thousand Chinese were killed or missing from Kanhsien in East Central China. A thousand civilians were reported killed by forced poisonous injections at Ichang, enemy-held Central China river port.

Americans and Filipinos eliminated an ambushing Jap company and beat back two desperate counterattacks on northern Luzon, running last week's toll in the Philippines to 4700 Japs killed and 444 taken prisoner.

Britain's Ballot Seen Spurring 'Red Europe'

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Dean of American Foreign Correspondents
Written Expressly for the Hearst Newspapers

MADRID, Spain, Aug. 6 (INS)—Conservative, capitalist England, hitherto justly boasting of its sound, solid, stable, dependable, financial banking, economic and industrial systems, is about to be turned into a Socialist laboratory of national, financial, economic and social experiments on a scale second only to totalitarian, Communist Soviet Russia.

In a competitive race with America for foreign markets, the doubling of which is England's only hope of economic survival, the Socialist Labor laboratory of experiments and theory is in fair way laying heavy handicaps on Britain.

As a result of the overwhelming Socalist Labor victory, England has avowedly identified itself with the Communist-Socialist wave, thus assuring a Communist Socialist Europe.

The "arsenal of American democracy" destroyed Nazism and Fascism, but instead of implanting democracy and freedom of our concept, has raised totalitarian Communism and Socialism in their place, as the blindest can now see.

The Western Hemisphere, under the leadership of the United States, now stands almost alone in the Western concept of democracy, with its free political institutions, rights and the benefits of owning private property, and an economic system with competitive business and commerce, under which the peoples of the Western world have prospered.

The moving closer to Totalitarian Communist Soviet Russia by Britain will not be without influence in the years to come on Anglo-American relations.

In the Hearst newspapers on Nov. 25, 1944, I wrote from Lisbon that "America must reckon on and prepare for a leftist Europe."

Many disagreed.

The British voters have removed any doubts.

Now I say that if the nations and peoples of North and South America like the system under which they have lived and prospered; if they have any conception whatsoever how blessed they are, how incomparably better off they are politically and economically than the people of Europe and Asia; if they have any appreciation of freedom and all its benefits they enjoy, and think are worth saving, then they must take measures to preserve them.

Those measures must include improvement in local, state and national governments, in wise social security, without destroying incentive.

Petain Backed Secret Arming

By RELMAN MORIN

PARIS, Aug. 6 (AP)—Gen. Pico Andart testified at the treason trial of Marshal Petain today that French troops were ordered by Gen. Maxime Weygand at the time of the armistice to hide all military equipment. They concealed 18,000,000,000 francs of war materiel from the Germans and an equal amount of food and raw materials by the end of 1942, he asserted.

Andart said underground factories, at the order of Petain, started building machine-gun carriers as early as 1941 and produced 270 of them in one year. The general said Petain congratulated him for his part in the activity and ordered him to continue his work.

"Pierre Laval knew of this but he did not appear to be interested," the witness said. Andart said the French hid and produced enough equipment for 24 divisions, except for heavy artillery and tanks.

Italian Prison Train Attacked by Germans

ROME, Aug. 6 (AP)—An Italian news dispatch from Bergamo today quoted Italians arriving from former concentration camps in Germany as saying their train had been attacked en route by Germans. Several of those aboard were wounded but none killed, the dispatch said.

IN TROUBLE AGAIN — Mrs. Elaine Montfredi Wisecarver, who was charged with child-stealing a year ago when she ran off and married a 14-year-old schoolboy, was in a Los Angeles jail today, charged with abandoning her daughter, Margaret, 3. She stepped out "just for two hours" and was gone two days.

Sour? So What

STORRS, Ct., Aug. 6 (AP)—The housewife's excuse that she can't can fruit because she can't get sugar is out, says Mrs. Marion Evans Dakin, agricultural extension service nutritionist, who reports sugar is not necessary.

"Sugar does not keep canned fruit from spoiling," said Mrs. Dakin today. "All it does is improve the texture, color and flavor. Only proper canning methods will prevent spoilage."

"It's a good idea, though, she added, to label unsweetened fruit so sweetening can be added when opened.

4135 More Vets Arrive on 3 Troopships

With 554 troops aboard, most of them infantry and air corps units and most of them slated for early discharge, the S. S. Pierre L'Enfant, the first of three troopships scheduled to dock here today, tied up at Commonwealth Pier. Personnel included 35 New Englanders.

Met by the official welcoming tug loaded with WACs, the 449th A. S. F. band and a hillbilly trio, the returning veterans were well serenaded on their short voyage up the harbor.

A smokestack of the Pierre L'Enfant, on which was painted a plane and three crosses denoting that its gun crew had accounted for four enemy planes, drew much interest from the welcoming group.

A large majority of the returning troops aboard the Pierre L'Enfant are veterans of three years' overseas service having fought in the African, Italian and western Europe campaigns.

Due to dock later today were the S. S. Marine Robin, with 3020 passengers of whom 312 are New Englanders, and the S. S. Helen Hunt Jackson, carrying a total of 561 with 28 New Englanders.

Troops returning on the Marine Robin include men of the 896th Signal Depot Co. (aviation); 1753d Engineer Depot Truck Co.; 220th Medical Battalian of the 20th Armored Division; Detachment C of the 11th Armored Division and an infantry reorganization detachment.

The Helen Hunt Jackson is carrying units of the 687th Air Material Squadron, 834th Air Engineer Squadron, 658th Air Material Squadron, 991st Medical Hospital Ship Platoon and surplus personnel. The Pierre l'Enfant has miscellaneous personel aboard.

Greater Boston men aboard the Pierre L'Enfant included:

Sen. Johnson Dies; League, Court Foe

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Sen. Hiram W. Johnson of California, militant opponent of the League of Nations and the San Francisco charter for a United Nations organization, died today at 79 years.

SEN. HIRAM JOHNSON

The veteran Republican Senator succumbed at Naval Hospital, where he had been confined for two and one-half weeks. His physician, Capt. Robert E. Duncan, USN, said he died from a thrombosis of a cerebral artery.

Sen. Johnson's political activities extended over a third of a century covering some of the most stirring events in the nation's history.

A striking figure in the Senate since first elected to Congress in 1916, he played a leading part in defeating President Wilson's League of Nations covenant and later in opposing United States' adherence to the World Court.

His wife, whom he referred to as "the boss," was with him when he died. His son, Lt. Col. Hiram W. Johnson, Jr., left San Francisco last night by plane, but failed to arrive before the Senator's death.

One of his last great Senate fights was against passage of the teen age draft bill. He told his colleagues, with tears in his eyes, that he opposed "calling children to fight our battles."

He had been expected to take a lead in opposition to the recently-approved World Charter, but illness prevented.

Another Senate battle, in which he lined up in opposition to Sen. Connally and others, was on the United States - Mexican water treaty. It finally was enacted, but not until Johnson had called upon all the arts of a long career to defeat it.

Johnson, who served as governor of California from 1910 until his election to Congress six years later, described himself as a "progressive Republican" and was instrumental in writing into his state's constitution such provisions as the initiative, referendum and recall, the direct primary, woman suffrage and the wiping out of national party lines in municipal and county elections.

Under his leadership, too, California pased legislation governing workmen's compensation, limiting hours of work for women, creating a state marketing department, regulating railroads and prison reforms.

Co-author of the Swing-Johnson Act which made possible the great Boulder Dam, Johnson also played an important role in the creation of California's gaint central valley project in which he maintained an active interest, to the extent of filling his offices with pictures and detailed maps of the huge public power and reclamation project.

Although he always retained the Republican label in his Senate activities, he several times broke with that party, once to run as vice-president with Theodore Roosevelt on the Bull Moose ticket in 1912 in the Republican party split which elected Woodrow Wilson for a first term over President Taft.

Sen. Johnson also supported President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932. During Roosevelt's second term, however, the veteran Californian opposed the President on several major issues and took the stump against him when he ran for a third term.

Union Chiefs Disown Taunton Bus Strike

Striking Taunton bus drivers should return to work "immediately," the head of theInternational Carmen's Union, A. L. Spradling, today was quoted as saying in a telephone conversation with Fred C. Cummings, vice-president of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway.

Cummings said he talked with Spradling at the latter's Detroit headquarters and was authorized by Spradling to make a public statement.

"He told me that 'when we get an award we abide by it and we expect the company to abide by it,'" Cummings said.

"'The company has a right to expect us to do so. In this instance the duty of the Taunton men is to immediately return to work and it is the intention of this organization to do everything we can to accomplish that result," Cummings said Spradling told him.

Cummings said he read to Spradling the text of an award by the state arbitrator which allowed the company to use any drivers it saw fit on its Taunton-Boston run.

The striking operators insisted only Taunton drivers be used instead of Fall River men.

The Spradling statement came as the strike went into its third day, leaving 18,000 commuters in Taunton, Fall River and Boston without transportation.

Further union opposition to the work stoppage was voiced by Secretary Annibal Arruda of the Fall River local. He said his unit was opposed to the "attitude" of the Taunton men.

"It's their headache, let them straighten it out," he said. "We won't get into the argument unless they step on our toes."

The Fall River union president, Mark A. Sullivan, also "disowned" the dispute, commenting "the Taunton drivers are trying to cut in on our work and I'm here to see that they don't."

Brig. Gen. Charles H. Cole, chairman of the State Arbitration and Conciliation Board, ordered the dispute ended within 48 hours.

POSTER GAL WEDS—Marjorie Stewart, former actress and the girl whose pretty face is on the pay envelopes of all GI's, has wed Capt. Jerry Jeroske in Paris, according to announcement by her mother in Hollywood. She met him while conducting War Loan shows overseas on the invitation of Gen. Eisenhower.

E. Boston Starts Dog Roundup

East Boston dogs were on the run today as police and Animal Rescue League agents, the latter swinging lassos, swept through the section after biting dogs caused such commotions that Capt. Frank H. Sliney enlisted the Animal Rescue League's aid in corraling every dog loose on the streets.

Seventeen canines were roped by lariat throwers Sherman Bates, Harry McGregor and Al Morris, league agents.

The roundup struck first in Everett and Sumner sts., near the Airport, thence along Saratoga st. to Orient Heights, and the captive dogs were taken to the League's Carver st. quarters. Most of them had no collars and were presumed unlicensed.

Those unclaimed within six or eight days will be given to families agreeing to care for them.

Civil Air Patrol To Train 3000

A civil air patrol announcement said today there would be 3000 cadet members in that organization in Massachusetts in the near future.

The announcement said also "most adult members" would become instructors for the newer aviators.

Lt. Col. John E. Shennett, wing commander, said: "The training of these cadets, 15, 16 and 17 years old, is one of the prime missions of the civil air patrol. That is the reason why CAP is now a branch of the Army air forces' training command."

Col. Shennett said there was "a continued need for building up a reservoir of flying personnel as insurance that the United States shall maintain its position of first in the air."

George H. Laiser Of Unitd Fruit Dies

George H. Laiser, 54, of Mt. Vernon st., Beacon Hill, United Fruit Co. executive and widely recognized authority on Spanish-American affairs, died suddenly yesterday at his home.

A native of Chicago, he was the son of the late Harmon and Elizabeth (Fenimore) Laiser and a grandnephew of the author James Fenimore Cooper.

He served overseas with the American Army in World War I and during the early part of the present war served with the American Field Service in the Middle East.

Galen Stone Widow Wills 4 Millions

Disposing of an estate valued at more than $4,000,000, the will of Mrs. Carrie M. Gregg Stone, widow of Galen L. Stone, was filed today in Dedham Probate Court.

The bulk of the huge estate was divided equally among her three children and those of a deceased daughter, Mrs. Katharina S. Hoyt.

The famous Stone summer home at Marion, "Great Hill," consisting of 550 acres and buildings, was left to her son, Robert G. Stone, along with several valuable paintings.

Other children sharing in the residue include Mrs. Margaret S. Hardwick of Brookline, wife of Huntington R. "Tack" Hardwick, famed Harvard football star, and Mrs. Barbara S. Chase of Canton.

Two nieces of the dead woman were left $10,000 each. They are Ruth T. High and Mrs. Gertrude T. Fretz, both of Brookline. Similar bequests were made to a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Bertha L. Stone, and to Hardwick.

A total of $50,000 went to charitable bequests. The Christian Science Society of Buzzards Bay and Pleasant View Home, Concord, N. H., each received $10,000.

Five thousand each was left to Mt. Pleasant Home, South End House Ass'n, Children's Friend Society, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., all of Boston, and Palmer Memorial Institute of Sedalia, N. C.

Employes of the Stone home in Brookline and the summer home were bequeathed individual sums ranging from $3000 to those employed at least 20 years to $500 for part-time workers.

Urge Operators On All Elevators

Provision for operators on any elevators used by the public or tenants of buildings of five or more floors was sought today in an order filed with the Boston City Council by Councilors Thomas G. J. Shannon, West Roxbury, and Thomas J. Hannon, Dorchester.

The order requested the council committee on ordinances be instructed to draft an ordinance requiring employment of regular operators for all such elevators, including automatic elevators used in many apartment buildings.

The order was referred to the committee on ordinances.

1st Bonus Blanks Ready This Week

The first 10,000 application forms for the $100 bonus, granted Massachusetts veterans of World War II, will be made available the end of this week, George F. Killgoar, deputy State treasurer, announced today.

Killgoar, who opened the new quarters of the bonus organization which he heads, said he had received more than 4000 personal requests for applications and that mail and telephone requests were averaging 300 daily.

The new quarters, located on the first floor of Ford Hall, 15 Ashburton pl., will be open from 8:15 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. Killgoar said he had made a preliminary order of 100,000 forms.

Tax Delinquents On Carpet Here

The Bureau of Internal Revenue here has subpoenaed 35 delinquent taxpayers owing from $500 to $100,000 to appear before it and explain why they haven't met their responsibilities.

Daniel J. Raedy, techincal tax administrator of Washington, is presiding at closed hearings in the federal building, where at least four of the delinquents are being heard daily. They are permitted to bring counsel and their names are not made public, in accordance with the bureau's policy.

Corporations were among those subpoenaed, it was disclosed.

The delinguents in some cases are expected to accept compromise payment arrangements offered to them by the government. A resume of the net results is to be taken to Washington by Eldon P. King, special deputy commissioner, who is sitting in at the hearings.

Plane Rescues Boy Hurt on Ship

Losing his balance aboard his father's fishing trawler, an 11-year-old Gloucester boy toppled through the open engine room hatch and was seriously injured today as the vessel was trawling on Georges bank, 125 miles east by south of Boston.

The boy's father, Capt. F. M. Lawson, contacted Coast Guard headquarters in Boston by radio telephone.

At 9:45 a. m. Lt. (jg) Kenneth Bilderback, USCGR, recently awarded the Air Medal, took off from Salem air base in a twin-engined patrol bomber, with the base's flight surgeon, Lt. Com. Stanley Stanulonous.

One hour later the plane landed alongside the trawler and Dr. Stanulonous went aboard and administered first aid. The boy, William, had badly lacerated legs and the right leg was broken.

Dr. Stanulonous also found the boy to be suffering from shock and on the return flight administered blood plasma.

The plane landed at 11:40 a. m. and a Coast Guard ambulance rushed the boy to Salem hospital.

Jockey Madden and 2 In Court, Deny Charge

Darrell Madden, 23, of Lynn, a widely known jockey who has been riding at Suffolk Downs, pleaded innocent in Newburyport court today to attempting to obtain money under false pretenses.

Arthur Abbruzzese, 28, and his brother, Anthony, 32, pleaded innocent to the same charge. They and the jockey were arrested Sunday by two Newburyport policemen and two State Troopers in a Newburyport jewelry store, the police said—but they declined to give any details and none was disclosed in court. One official said the "intended victim" was George A. Tatro, 31, the jewelry store proprietor, known as a racing enthusiast.

Kerrigan Urges Airport Transit

Mayor Kerrigan today submitted to the city council his promised order to ask for extension of the rapid transit system to the Logan Airport, East Boston, with as much as possible of the work to be done by returned veterans.

He said fulfillment of the plan would enable plane patrons to reach the heart of the city within 20 minutes. It is proposed to extend the system 1000 additional feet to the Boston & Albany right of way from the present terminal in Maverick sq., thence 2500 feet to Day sq. and 1800 feet underground to the airport.

At present buses are operated between the airport and Mavrick sq.

Cop's Queer Visitor

Finds Whatsis Perched in His Room

Harbor Police Sgt. Frederick L. Robbins of Edson st., Dorchester, had just got out of bed this morning and was halfway through one of those good old yawn-and-stretch awakeners, when he saw something on the window sill that froze him as he was.

He blinked, gave himself a quick pinch and stared. "How could I, who never touch the stuff, ever pick up a case of jimjams like this?" he begged of himself. "It looks like a monkey but I wouldn't say it was a monkey," he told himself. "It's gray and about the size of a squirrel but it looks old for its size and—whoops! It's coming in."

The sergeant braced himself and raised the window. The Whatsis scrambled nimbly into the room and gestured that it wanted to be pals. It was all right with the sergeant. He offered the Whatsis some fruit. The Whatsis gratefully gobbled it and began a pantomime for more.

"You could be something some soldier brought back from the Pacific," the sergeant addressed it.

Robbins telephoned police headquarters. There was no record of anyone having a Whatsis. "I'll keep you a while," he told it, "if the Mrs. doesn't object—and if she does, the boys at the Mattapan station will win you."

The Whatsis tugged at his trouser cuffs and grinned.

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Q—Would appreciate information to determine eligibility on application for Family Allowance. I have two sons in the Army, both of whom married after enlistment. My husband works, but he does not earn sufficient money to run the household. We also have a nine-year-old daughter. Before the boys entered the service they helped meet expenses at home. I find it necessary to seek part time employment, but now due to ill health I don't think I can work much longer. Where would I file for allotment if my case is worthy of consideration? D. M., Lynn.

A—You are entitled to file for allotment from one or both of your sons if your income is considered insufficient by the government. However, suggest that you write or contact Personal Affairs Branch, First Service Command Hq., 808 Commonwealth ave., Boston 15, Mass. and request allotment application. Office of Dependency and Benefits will determine eligibility in your case.

Q—My husband is in the Army despite the fact we have four children. He is 39 years old. Up to now he has not been shipped overseas. Is it true that before being discharged he will have to serve overseas? L. M. Epping, N. H.

A—It is not true that one must have overseas service for discharge. If unable, however, to state, if he will be shipped overseas or remain in states. Would be inclined to think he might receive a discharge under new regulations being contemplated by the War Dept. If husband is considered essential in war effort it is hard to state future status.

Q—For the past few months I have been visiting an Italian prisoner of war. If I marry him at conclusion of war will he be able to stay in this country. C. D., Boston.

A—According to government officials he will have to return to his native land, until immigration laws permit him to enter under regular quota.

Q—My brother was killed in action. His wife was receiving a pension and has now remarried. Would it be possible for my parents to receive that pension now as they are in need of it? R. E. A., Brighton.

A—The Government provides for the widow, children and dependent parents of deceased servicemen. If a widow remarries, her pension is discontinued and is not transferrable to anyone else. However, pension is payable to a dependent parent, or parents, whether dependency arises before or after the death of the veteran. It is suggested that you contact the Veterans' Facility, White River Junction, Vt., for information as to whether your parents are eligible.

Q—I am the mother of a soldier's baby. The soldier is trying to get a divorce from his wife, but meanwhile I have no support for the child. Would the Government pay any allowance for her? E. S., Brookline.

A—The child is entitled to payment of Family allowance if there is a court order adjudicating the soldier as father of the child, or if the soldier is willing to submit a certified statement of paternity. As the soldier is in this country, he could file application himself and no court order would be necessary. If the soldier is not willing to do this and you have a court order, the application form may be obtained from Personal Affairs Branch, First Service Command, Boston, Mass.

Q—My son was discharged from the Army and now draws compensation from the Veterans' Administration. What is the difference in pension and compensation as paid to a veteran? H. R., Revere.

A—Compensation is pay for a service-connected disability, pension is non-service connected monetary benefit.

Q—My son was severely injured while in training, but is now back on duty. Is he entitled to the Purple Heart? Mrs. F. A., Mattapan.

A—No, he isn't. The Purple Heart is awarded when a serviceman, or a civilian of the United States serving with the armed forces, is wounded as a result of enemy action, provided such wound requires treatment by a medical officer.

Amazing Discovery in a Hearing Aid

A big improvement has been made in a hearing aid now welcomed by thousands. It is a new hearing aid that does not require separate battery pack, battery wire, battery case or garment to bulge or weigh you down. So small it fits the palm of your hand. About one-half the weight and bulk of most hearing aids. The tone is natural, noiseless, clear and powerful. The makers of Beltone, Dept. 5C4, 847 Jackson Blvd., Chicago 7, Ill., are so proud of their achievement that they will gladly send free descriptive booklet and explain how you may get a full demonstration of this remarkable hearing device in your own home without risking a penny. Hornet Smashed Up By Storm

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—A mountainous wave lifted up and smacked down the 27,000-ton aircraft carrier Hornet so hard June 5 that the forward corners of the flight deck folded down along the sides.

Thus a 120-knot gale (138 miles an hour), achieved what the Japanese never were able to do in 14 months of hard-fought action.

The Navy told the Hornet's story today. It let the Japanese know exactly where the Hornet is—Hunter's Point in San Francisco Bay. She steamed through the Golden Gate, July 7, and went to drydocks for repairs.

Behind her lay 1,270,000 tons of enemy shipping sunk or damaged and 1410 ruined enemy planes:

Some of the figures: Six hundred sixty-eight planes shot down; 742 planes destroyed on the ground; one cruiser sunk; one carrier sunk; 10 destroyers sunk; 42 cargo ships sunk.

The Hornet, named for the ship which launched the first bombing raid on Tokyo, was 150 miles off Okinawa when the typhoon struck at 2 a. m., June 5.

Her bow rose atop a great wave and then dropped with an impact which folded down the flight deck.

The Hornet spent 52 days under Japanese air attack without being hit by even a machine gun bullet.

Her crew claims a record in the shooting down of 255 Japanese planes in a 30-day period.

In one day she accounted for 67.

The Hornet was launched at Newport News, Va., Aug. 30, 1943, and after the shortest shakedown cruise in carrier history was in action against the Japanese exactly seven months later.

Under R. Adm. (then captain) William D. Sample, the Hornet went into the Marianas, from Guam to the Bonin and Volcano islands, through the battle of the Philippine sea, to Pagan and the Bonins again, to Eniwetok and back to the Bonins. She was in the Guam invasion, then hit Yap, Ulithi and the Bonins again.

As part of Task Force 58 and Flagship of Rear Adm. J. J. (Jocko) Clark, she was into the Bonins so often the men formed a "Jocko Jima Development Corporation" for the purpose of "developing and selling shares in real estate within 500 miles of downtown Tokyo."

Capt. Sample was made a Rear Adm. and succeeded as the Hornet's skipper by Capt. Austin K. Doyle, who took her through strikes in the Philippines and Okinawa, support of landings in the Philippines and, in February, 1944, the great carrier strike on steamed unchallenged 200 miles Tokyo. For two days the big ship off the coast of Japan, sending her planes in to spread destruction. Later in February she took part to rinvasion. On April 6-7, more in the Iwo Jima invasion.

On Easter Sunday the Hornet was off Okinawa again, this time for invasion. On April 6-7, more than 500 Jap planes attacked Clark's group. The group accounted for 152 of them, the Hornet claiming more than a third.

The Hornet's last major action was the destruction by her planes of a huge new Japanese aircraft factory on the home island of Kyushu before it had time to manufacture a plane.

Atomic Bomb

grateful to Providence that the Germans got the V-1s and the V-2s late and in limited quantities and even more grateful that they did not get the atomic bomb at all.

The battle of the laboratories held fateful risks for us as well as the battles of the air, land, and sea, and we have now won the battle of the laboratories as we have won the other battles.

Beginning in 1940 before Pearl Harbor, scientific knowledge useful in war was pooled between the United States and Great Britain and many priceless helps to our victories have come from that arrangement. Under that general policy the research on the atomic bomb was begun. With American and British scientists working together we entered the race of discovery against the Germans.

The United States had available the large number of scientists of distinction in the many needed areas of knowledge. It had the tremendous industrial and financial resources necessary for the project and they could be devoted to it without undue impairment of other vital war work.

In the United States the laboratory work and the production plants, on which a substantial start had already been made, would be out of reach of enemy bombing, while at that time Britain was exposed to constant air attack and was still threatened with the possibility of invasion.

For these reasons Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt agreed that it was wise to carry on the project here. We now have two great plants and many lesser works diverted to the production of atomic power. Employment during peak construction numbered 125,000 and over 65,000 individuals are even now engaged in operating the plants. Many have worked there for 2½ years. Few know what they have been producing. They see great quantities of material going in and they see nothing coming out of these plants for the physical size of the explosive charge is exceedingly small.

We have spent $2,000,000,000 on the greatest scientific gamble in history and won.

But the greatest marvel is not the size of the enterprise, its secrecy, nor its cost, but the achievement of scientific brains in putting together infinitely complex pieces of knowledge held by many men in different fields of science into a workable plant. And hardly less marvelous has been the capacity of industry to design, and of labor to operate, the machines and methods to do things never done before so that the brain child of many minds came forth in physical shape and performed as it was supposed to do.

Both science and industry worked under the direction of the United States Army which achieved a unique success in managing so diverse a problem in the advancement of knowledge in an amazingly short time.

It is doubtful if such another combination could be got together in the world. What has been done is the greatest achievement of organized science in history. It was done under high pressure and without failure.

We are now prepared to obliterate more rapidly and completely every productive enterprise the Japanese have above ground in any city. We shall destroy their docks, their factories and their communications. Let there be no mistake; we shall completely destroy Japan's power to make war.

It was to spare the Japanese people from utter destruction that the ultimatum of July 26 was issued at Potsdam. Their leaders promptly rejected that ultimatum. If they do not now accept our terms they may expect a rain of ruin from the air, the like of which has never been seen on this earth. Behind this air attack will follow sea and land forces in such numbers and power as they have not yet seen and with the fighting skill of which they are already well aware.

The Secretary of War, who has kept in personal touch with all phases of the project, will immediately make public a statement giving further details.

His statement will give facts concerning the sites at Oak Ridge, near Knoxville, Tenn., and at Richland, near Pasco, Washington and an installation near Santa Fe, N. M. Although the workers at the sites have been making materials to be used in producing the greatest destructive force in history, they have not themselves been in danger beyond that of many other occupations, for the utmost care has been taken of their safety.

The fact that we can release atomic energy ushers in a new era in man's understanding of nature's forces. Atomic energy may in the future supplement the power that now comes from coal, oil and falling water, but at present it cannot be produced on a basis to compete with them commercially. Before that comes there must be a long period of intensive research.

It has never been the habit of the scientists of this country or the policy of this government to withhold from the world scientific knowledge. Normally, therefore, everything about the work with atomic energy would be made public.

But under present circumstances it is not intended to divulge the technical processes of production or all the military applications, pending further examination of possible methods of protecting us and the rest of the world from the danger of sudden destruction.

I shall recommend that the Congress of the United States consider promptly the establishment of an appropriate commission to control the production and use of atomic power within the United States. I shall give further consideration and make further recommendations to the Congress as to how atomic power can become a powerful and forceful influence towards the maintenance of world peace.

Plants in 3 States Help Make Bomb

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—The atomic bomb disclosed by President Truman today was developed at factories in Tennessee, Washington and New Mexico.

From 65,000 to 125,000 workers were employed on the project at Oak Ridge near Knoxville, Tenn., at Richland near Pasco, Wash., and at an unnamed installation near Santa Fe, Ne. M.

The President said the work was so secret most of the employees did not know its character.

U. S. Radio Tells Japs Bomb News

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Development and use of the atomic bomb will dominate American broadcasts to Japan for several days.

The Office of War Information's overseas branch began broadcasting President Truman's statement on the atomic bomb immediately upon its issuance. Transmitters at San Francisco, Hawaii and Saipan were used.

No Japanese-beamed transmitters were on the air at the time. But the statement immediately was featured in English and other language broadcasts audible in Japan, and OWI soon began putting on special Japanese language broadcasts.

Particular emphasis is put on the President's statement "it was to spare the Japanese people from utter destruction that the ultimatum of July 26 was issued" and that if the Japanese do not accept the terms "they may expect a rain of ruin from the air the like of which has never been seen on the earth."

Why You Save $19.00

We've sold hundreds of outfits at $29.95 and they were a good value at that price, too. This lot was damaged in shipment by the railroad, some have scratches and small dents, some have slightly bent tie rods but in no case is the damage anything of importance. You can fix them perfectly yourself in jig time—we haven't the time or the help to do it. So here's the story in a nutshell. In settlement with the railroad we bought them at a mere fraction of their actual worth and we're passing the saving on to you.

You Get · 2 Twin Beds · Ladder and Guard Rail Complete

All pieces have rich Walnut Enamel finish—all are brand new, all are made of strong metal. The beds are of neat modern design with nicely decorated head and footboards. Use as either a Bunk Bed or 2 Twin Beds.

Atomic Bomb War's Best Kept Secret

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—"Manhattan Project," probably the most carefully guarded secret of the war, produced the atom bomb.

Those two words magically produced needed materials, however scarce, as well as manpower to carry out the vast research which led to the disclosure today that country had produced a bomb far more deadly than any other.

"Manhattan Project" whispered into the right ears means the highest priorities for materials and manpower.

Thousands knew of the existence of "Manhattan project," but few of them knew any more than that it was super-secret.

The project was so broken down that those working on it usually knew only one of its phases. Aside from the one phase they could not know the ultimate objective.

On a given day, for example, several Army officers might ask the War Production Board for over-riding priorities for certain materials for "Manhattan project." Even when they met, one did not know the mission of another.

Scores of universities and scientific laboratories had a part in the work. They were assigned one problem at a time, provided the answers to them, but still did not know what their work ultimately would lead to.

Army officers who carried even the smallest bits of information about "Manhattan project" moved about with brief cases chained to their wrists, often under guard.

A few times "Manhattan project" even reached the newspapers in connection with recruitment of manpower. Any inquiry, however, brought the response that it was a secret project and no information could be given.

Even high War Production Board officials knew few or no details of "Manhattan project."

An official of the agency's Office of Production Research and Development said WPB did not even know the over-all requirements for material except to "guess once in a while."

All requests for material were met "expeditiously" on a day-to-day basis.

Police Nab Snake So Cultists Now Want Fierce Lion

ST. CHARLES, Va., Aug. 6 (AP)—The Stone Creek snake cultists, whose religious demonstrations were interrupted yesterday by State Troopers who captured their lone reptile and imprisoned it in a glass jar, were busy today planning more rites just as soon as "the spirit moves us."

Adopting a policy of non-resistance, the cultists made no effort to stop police when they seized a copperhead that made a brief appearance yesterday before 3000 persons. The "Faith Healers" met again last night, produced a second copperhead from hiding and to the accompaniment of songs and shouted testimonials, passed the snake from hand to hand.

Reasserting his determination to practice his beliefs despite an order by the governor to State Troopers to confiscate all poisonous snakes handled by the cultists, the Rev. Leroy Sanders of Harlan County, Ky., told the gathering he would "stick to my faith if I never see my wife and eight children again."

Another, the Rev. Oscar Hutton, also of Harlan County, testified when "the faith comes upon me, I wish I could find the wildest lion in the mountains. I'd grab him by his chin whiskers and I'd say: 'come on, son. We're going places.'"

359 Cars in July, Ford Speeds Output

DETROIT, Aug. 6 (AP)—The Ford Motor Co., first to announce new passenger car production, turned out 359 passenger units in July and plans to step up the volume considerably during the current month, it was disclosed today.

Truck production during July totaled 5889, to be doubled this month.

2 Hub Scientists Study Peace Use Of Atomic Power

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (INS)—A special committee was announced today to study the benefits that may result for all mankind from the harnessing of atomic energy, first disclosed in the use of an atomic bomb against Japan.

The War Department said that in the development of the new discovery "it appears that in decades ahead there will ultimately flow multiple benefits for all mankind."

Sec. Stimson appointed the following interim group to study the "best use" of the discovery:

Sec. of State James F. Byrnes; assistant Sec. of State William L. Clayton; former Undersec. of Navy Ralph A. Bard; Dr. Vannevar Bush, director of the Office of Scientific Research and Development; Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard University; Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology; George L. Harrison, special consultant to the Secretary of War and president of the New York Life Insurance Co., alternate chairman, and Stimson, chairman.

One New Bomb Like 2000 B-29s

WAHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—One atomic bomb of the type announced by President Truman today packs a punch equivalent to that normally delivered by 2000 B-29s.

The President said he missile has an explosive force equal to 20,000 tons—40,000,000 pounds—of TNT. Assuming a B-29 carries a bomb of 10 tons of TNT, four 500-plane raids by the world's biggest bombers would be necessary to equal in destructive power the exploding fury of one atomic bomb.

GEN. EAKER FLYING TO RIO

Shooting down two Jap planes in 15 minutes in the Western Pacific recently, Lt (jg) Charles T. Krug, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Krug of Brookline ave., Back Bay, has brought his total up to three and a half planes in two and a half months. Lt. Krug has flown 25 missions over enemy territory and participated in the East China Sea action April 7 in which the battleship Yamato was sunk.

PFC William T. Campbell of St. Edward rd., East Boston, is on his way home from Europe with the 28th "Bloody Bucket" Division which entered action a year ago at St. Lo and smashed through Belgium and Luxembourg to hit the Siegfried Line Sept. 11. His division was the first to enter Germany in strength. PFC Campbell wears the Combat Infantry Man's Badge and three battle stars.

Another veteran of the 28th Infantry Division, PFC John F. Brown, Jr., husband of Mrs. Mary Brown of Grape st., Malden, is also on his way home. The division quit its occupational duties in Germany July 5 and moved to Camp Pittsburgh, a redeployment camp near Reims.

S-Sgt. Patrick F. Lynch of Blake st., Mattapan, after long service in Italy with the 15th Air Force, is returning home with the 459th Bomb Group, it was recently announced by Brig. Gen. James A. Mollison, commanding general of the 15th Air Force.

Under the Army's redeployment plan S-Sgt. Herbert S. Higgins of Bournedale rd., Jamaica Plain, has been transferred from the Seventh General Hospital unit near London, England, to the 91st U. S. Army general hospital at Oxford.

AN OPEN LETTER

from the New York Stock Exchange to Every Owner of Series "E" War Bonds

PLEASE DO THIS—get out your Series "E" War Bonds and check them with the chart at the right. Then you will understand why we say:

"Hold the 'E' bonds you already have . . . you can't afford to cash them in.

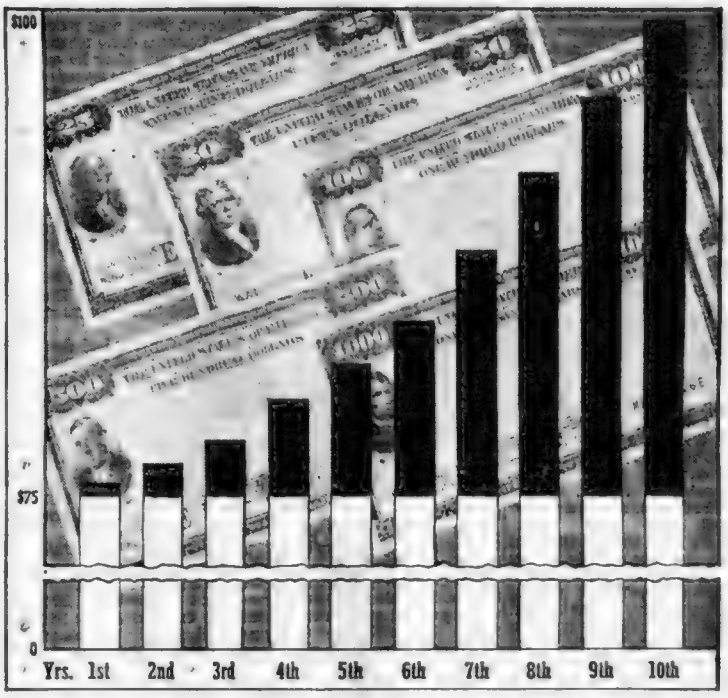
"Buy more of them . . . don't miss the investment opportunity they afford.

"War Bonds, backed by the resources of our Government, are the world's best security value."

AS THE CHART at right shows, the increase in value of an "E" bond is greatest in the later years of the bond's life. (White bars represent $75 original investment on an "E" bond of $100 face value—the black bars show the increase in value by years over this original amount.) Note how the rate of increase goes up in the second three years of an "E" bond's life—and goes up again even more sharply over the final four years.

Taking another example—a $1,000 "E" bond which costs $750 originally—the following table shows graphically how values grow faster as the bond grows older:

Yrs.	Increase In Value	Total Value	% of Worth the Yr. Before
1	$ 5.00	$ 755	.67%
2	10.00	765	1.32
3	15.00	780	1.96
4	20.00	800	2.56
5	20.00	820	2.50
6	20.00	840	2.44
7	40.00	880	4.76
8	40.00	920	4.55
9	40.00	960	4.35
10	40.00	1,000	4.17



The greater values that accumulate in the later years of a $1,000 "E" bond's life are apparent—$40 a year in each of the last four years, compared with an average of only $10 a year in the first three years, or $20 a year in the second three years. Right-hand column of table shows percentage of the bond's worth in each previous year, now added to its value. These percentages apply in the case of "E" bonds of all denominations.

If you have owned such bonds over the last few years, you are now entering the period of far better-than-average increase. You would literally be throwing money away to cash them prior to maturity.

The bonds of our Government are the only securities this Exchange has ever recommended in the more than 150 years of its existence. We urge you: "Buy War Bonds with certainty. Hold them with confidence."

Shangri-La Diary

By CPL. MARGARET HASTINGS, WAC

Written Exclusively for International News Service (World Copyright and All Rights Reserved)

OWEGO, N. Y., Aug. 6 (INS)—Capt. Cecil E. Walters blew into camp at the head of his paratroopers on Friday afternoon, May 25. The captain is 6 feet, 4 inches tall. He looked like a giant as he came down the trail at the head of his Filipino boys and the ubiquitous escort of natives.

In this chapter of her entrancing "Shangri-La Diary," WAC Cpl. Margaret Hastings tells of the extraordinary experience of the paratroop rescue party when they encountered the natives in New Guinea's Hidden Valley.

The captain's arrival was like a strong, fresh breeze. He was not only a capable and efficient officer, but a one-man floor show. Two minutes after he arrived, the camp started jumpin'.

"Shoo, Shoo Baby" he was singing at the top of his lungs, literally truckin' down the trail as he burst into camp.

Five paratroopers were with him: T-Sgt. "Superman" Coili, T-Sgt. Don Ruiz, T-Sgt. Fernando L. Dongallo, T-Sgt. Johnny Javonillo and Cpl. Custodio Alerta.

Three others had been left behind in the big valley: Sgt. Alfred Baylon, medical technician; Sgt. Valasco, and M-Sgt. Obrenica. They were left behind to build the glider strip, a project of which we now heard for the first time.

We now learned, too, that every one of the Filipino boys who parachuted to our aid had volunteered for the mission. They were all members of the Scout Company, Special Reconnaissance Battalion.

When Capt. Walters asked for volunteers, every man had stepped forward. Finally, Walters had to select from the volunteers, the men who accompanied him. His men worshipped Walters, and the affection was patently mutual.

We knew that Walters and his men were nearing camp long before we saw them. Far off we heard that yapping noise peculiar to the natives, and we decided it must be guides bringing the paratroopers down the trail.

When they finally made camp, Walters and his boys looked even happier than we did. They had been on the trail since Tuesday morning, a total of three and a half days.

They had badly miscalculated the distance to cover and the time it would take to reach us; had taken inadequate food for the journey, and were without anything to eat from Wednesday night until Friday noon, when the Army plane dropped supplies to them. (Walters had a walkie-talkie radio for communication with the plane).

"Then we all ate so much we could hardly walk," he explained.

They found the natives in the big valley as friendly and harmless as our Pete and his villagers.

Walters and his party stayed from Sunday until Tuesday morning in the big valley, setting up a camp site and staking out a landing field for the glider.

From the moment they landed, they were surrounded by eager, inquisitive natives, who had never before seen white men.

Capt. Walters explained the situation by radio to Maj. George Gardner.

The major, a Clevelander, is an aide to Maj. Gen. Clements McMullen, commanding general of the Far Eastern Air Service Command. We nicknamed the major our "Guardian Angel" because he used to fly out in the Army plane every day and hover over us until he found out how we were and what we needed.

Capt. Walters had brought along playing cards and now began daily poker and gin rummy sessions.

We won and lost "thousands of dollars" every session. The captain played just as earnestly as if it were for real money and when I would bluff him out of a big pot, he would be livid.

"There ought to be a law against women playing poker!" he would yell, as he slammed down his hand. But T-Sgt. Coili was the real gambler. We called him "Superman" because he was so keenly intelligent and able to get so much done around camp. Win, lose or draw, Coili would bet on anything, including a pair of treys.

Walters was a personality kid. Often after supper he would put on a one-man floor show. He could give a wonderful imitation of a night-club singer or a radio crooner.

Then he would truck and shag, singing popular songs while not only we but the natives sat about entranced. "Shoo, Shoo Baby" was always his favorite. Walters was wonderful for morale. No one could be downhearted for long in his presence.

The paratroopers would sing their own songs, including the one sung to the tune of "Battle Hymn of the Republic." I contributed a few WAC songs to the nightly fiesta.

However, there was much serious business done around camp. The day after he arrived, Capt. Walters looked at Decker's and my injuries while Doc dressed them.

On our recovery depended when we got down the trail to the glider strip and rescue. Doc was complete boss in this department. We were all eager to go, but twice the trek was postponed when Doc firmly said we were not yet able to travel.

Three weeks passed after Walters arrived before Doc was satisfied that we were up to the trip.

Doc and Rammy had done wonders for us, but now that Walters had arrived with reinforcements we really began to look like an Army camp.

A pyramidal tent went up. Other pup tents blossomed. The kitchen was enlarged and the whole place spotlessly policed. The boys did wonders with the food the Army parachuted to us.

Two days after Walters and his men arrived, the Army plane came over and gave us special instructions. Maj. Gardner said the Army was parachuting to us 20 crosses and one Star of David for the burial of the seven girls and the 14 men killed in the crash. Included were 21 dog tags, identifying each member of the Women's Army Corps and the officers and enlisted men of the Army.

Capt. Walters would take a burial detail, Maj. Gardner continued, and go to the scene of the crash.

The following day, carrying the crosses and the dog tags, Capt. Walters and all his men except Rammy and Doc started up that sharp peak.

McCollom had given them explicit instructions. But so misleading is the jungle and so many were the tributaries that poured into the stream we had used as a path to safety that the party got lost.

They returned at nightfall, nearly as exhausted as we had been. The next day, McCollom volunteered to lead three of the boys up the mountain. They made the round trip in a day.

On the last lap, McCollom said, he and the men were led straight to the plane by little tufts of my hair which had caught on everything along the way until he gave me that brush cut the day we started down the mountain.

On the succeeding day, Walters and the paratroopers went back up the mountain. They buried the sad remains of those who had died in the inferno that had snuffed out a happy Sunday excursion.

They put up the Star of David for Sgt. Belle Naimer of the Bronx, N. Y., the girl whose Air Corps fiance had been killed in a plane crash en route to Europe. As they put up the star and the crosses, and draped each with a dog tag, an Army plane circled constantly above.

From that plane, over the radio, came the saddest and most impressive funeral services I have ever heard. We sat around the camp radio, silent and very humble, as a Catholic, a Protestant and a Jewish chaplain in the plane read burial services for the dead on the mountain top.

We were very humble because we had been saved where so many had perished.

Lt. McCollom sat with head bowed, his usual controlled self. But Sgt. Decker's and my heart ached for him. On one of those white crosses up that cruel mountain hung the dog tag of his twin brother, Lt. Robert E. McCollom, from whom only death could separate him.

NAVY FACES THE FACTS

THE NAVY DEPARTMENT in Washington is reliably reported to have taken under "serious consideration" the proposal to establish a permanent Naval Academy on the Pacific Coast, supplementing the existing facilities for training officer personnel at the historic Annapolis Academy.

It is good to see the Navy Department taking this sensible attitude toward the proposal, because that is the only way the Navy will ever have ADEQUATE officer training facilities.

For much too long a time, the attitude of the Navy toward the proposed West Coast Academy has been one of REFUSAL to recognize the meritorious and irrefutable and inescapable facts about it.

More recently, the attitude of the Navy has been to EVADE the facts.

The most recent evasive action of the Navy has been the attempted acquisition by condemnation of St. John's College at Annapolis, which adjoins the Naval Academy and thus offers some opportunity for expansion of the existing facilities.

THERE ARE many objections to this measure, not the least being the fact that St. John's College is one of the oldest colleges in the United States—the THIRD oldest in fact—and its governing board objects to its extinguishment for any reason short of actual national necessity.

And Chairman David I. Walsh of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, which has authorized appraisal of St. John's College by the Navy preparatory to actual condemnation, frankly acknowledges:

"I judge it will be difficult for most members of this committee to reach a decision that the purchase of St. John's is the only way out, that it is an actual military necessity."

However, the major objection to expansion of the Naval Academy by this means—disregarding the obvious and great injustice to one of the nation's most venerable and honored educational institutions—is in the fact that it would not be an ADEQUATE expansion, by any test of military necessity.

It would NOT give the Navy sufficient facilities for training the minimum number of new officers it will need for the postwar naval establishment.

It would not give the Academy the NEW training facilities it most vitally needs—particularly the facilities for aviation training, which are absolutely essential to a modern navy and which the Annapolis Academy woefully lacks and would continue to lack even though St. John's College should be absorbed.

THE BEST PLACE for the Navy to establish comprehensive and complete officer training facilities—and in fact the ONLY place it can find all the suitable and ideal elements of climate and topography and illimitable room for expansion and maneuver—is the Pacific Coast of the United States.

The Navy has proved this to be true out of its own experience in the present war, having had emergency recourse to West Coast facilities and institutions for the training of its wartime officers—and having had admirable results therefrom.

It will be no less important and essential to the Navy to have permanent officer training facilities after the war, and only the advantageous West Coast is capable of providing them.

It is to the credit of the Navy Department that it is taking the sensible course of "serious consideration" for this proposal.

It has NOT been to the credit of the Navy Department that it has delayed such consideration and evaded the basic facts in the situation, through such dilatory and inadequate measures as the unwarranted and inadequate St. John's acquisition.

The Navy should BUILD an entirely new and complete academy on the Pacific Coast, in order to be a sufficient instrument for national defense—and the War Department should do the same with respect to a supplementary Military Academy, for its West Point Academy is similarly insufficient for its needs and incapable of expansion.

SOME YEARS AGO I read of an invention which eliminated outside noises from a room. By the use of this attachment you could keep your window open in the summertime and still not hear street noises. I believe Hiram Maxim was named as the inventor. Wonder what became of this invention? I don't mind the street noises so much, but certainly would like to shut out the racket made by loud radio players and late party givers.

PLEASE NOTE: One United States general returning from the Pacific front says: "We have gained control of the air. There can be no decisive enemy action. The Jap is up against something he can't do anything about and he is going to be taken apart." Of course, that cheers everybody up, then the next day we see an item headed: "Officer Warns of Jap Power, Complacency of American Public Decried." This general tells the reporters there is a long fight ahead. That the strength of the Japs is underestimated. And so on. The American public is not complacent. It is confused. And no wonder. Those returning officers should get together and compare notes before they pop off.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—If you have time from deciding the arguments of a couple of corporals, please settle this one between a couple of majors. How many taxicabs are now in operation in New York City? A—At the moment there are 9432 taxicabs in operation in Greater New York. There are about fifty thousand active taxicabs in the United States. So New York seems to have nearly one-fifth of the country's taxicabs. But try to get one on a rainy night. Q—Did Eva Tanguay make her first hit in burlesque, vaudeville or musical comedy? A—I believe Eva first attracted attention playing a peppery stenographer in a musical show titled "The Office Boy," which starred Frank Daniels. But I wouldn't bet any stogies on it. However, it was in vaudeville Eva sang:

Eva Tanguay

My voice may be funny
But it's getting me the money
So I don't care!

But he doesn't say why . . . "So you want to know why the little red schoolhouses were painted red," writes a Middle Westerner. "It was because red paint was the cheapest obtainable" . . . See another New Yorker was burned to death after her bed caught fire due to her going to sleep while smoking a cigaret. That brings to mind a man recently wrote me he had invented a fire-proof cigaret holder especially designed for people having difficulty keeping awake while smoking in bed.

MULES & MEN: A great many men now take steps to have their appearance improved as to face, figure and hair. However, most of these men seemed to feel a little self-conscious about their efforts to recapture a little of their youthful looks. So the establishments handling this sort of thing are usually shrouded in secrecy. There is no reason why a man shouldn't try to look younger or at least prevent himself from appearing aged. A young, vigorous, healthy appearance is a definite asset to a business executive. Many wives are not in favor of husbands looking younger than their age. The little lady wants to make herself look a lot younger, but she wishes her mate to look at least 15 years older than she does. The more suspicious wives also have a fear that if a middle-aged husband gets to looking too young he will begin to have young ideas.

YOUTHFUL BRUNETTE: "The blondes and redheads seem to think they have a monopoly on looking young for their years," writes a Californian. "There are brunettes who in their forties and fifties still have that schoolgirl figure and complexion. A brunette widow living next door confided to me she is 50 and has eight grandchildren. She looks to be 30. She is a medical WAC and very popular with the young fellows. Sometimes they take her out in preference to her daughter."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—On another day I will take up for discussion in some detail a public statement prepared for Elliott Roosevelt by Randolph Paul, the New Deal ideologist, until lately employed in the Treasury Department as general counsel.

Westbrook Pegler

My immediate interest today is confined to Elliott's statement that "those millions who loved and respected him have the right to know that Franklin D. Roosevelt never promoted or assisted my personal business affairs. Any statement that he ever did so is a deliberate, infamous lie."

This raises a head-on issue of veracity and credibility between Elliott and John Hartford, president of the Atlantic & Pacific chain of grocery stores, who loaned Elliott $200,000 and on his word and that of Jesse Jones, President Roosevelt's Secretary of Commerce, settled the debt for $4000.

Hartford says they telephoned President Roosevelt at the Little White House at Warm Springs, Ga., that the President hailed him by his first name, although they had never met, and invited him to come and visit him.

Elliott's statement does not deny that there was a telephone conversation between his father and Hartford, so we may speculate as to what else they discussed and what prompted a citizen who had never met the President to call him up at exactly that moment out of the infinity of time.

To agree with Elliott that that loan was not discussed, if that is his contention, we must conclude that the call was a miraculous coincidence at the very moment when Elliott was borrowing $200,000 on "unbankable" security from a man whom he had met only once and then for a mere introduction.

IN REGARD to Elliott's declaration that his father "never promoted or assisted my personal business affairs" I shall relate a conversation that I held with Hill Blackett, of Chicago, one of the foremost radio advertising agents and Republican national committeeman for Illinois in 1939.

Mr. Blackett says that in 1939, and he does not remember the date or even the season of the year, Elliott asked him to go to Washington and dine at the White House some time and that he said "Sure."

His business was placing radio advertising by clients with radio stations and networks. Elliott then was running his Texas State Network. This was the year of Elliott's big loan. He did place business with the network at Elliott's solicitation because "anything that looks good we will try."

A man with whom Blackett later discussed his visit has said that Blackett told him that during the dinner with President and Mrs. Roosevelt they talked mainly about advertising business for Elliott. Governor Landon's recollection of a conversation with Blackett is that Blackett gave him, also, the understanding that the dinner had this business purpose.

WHEN I REACHED Mr. Blackett by telephone he said that, following Elliott's suggestion that he dine with his parents at the White House, he received his invitation from Mrs. Roosevelt and that when he arrived at Washington a reservation had been made for him at the Mayflower Hotel by the White House.

He is not certain whether he went to Washington solely for the purpose of the meeting or had gone on a routine trip. Later in the day, he says, "they" called and said to come on over to the White House early. He had never met either the President or Mrs. Roosevelt.

To a degree, Mr. Blackett's present version of the occasion differs from those of my first informant and Governor Landon, based on talks with Blackett. He says that if the purpose of the invitation was to promote advertising revenue for Elliott, the Roosevelts did it "delicately."

Neither of them suggested that he place any business with Elliott but Mrs. Roosevelt said they were interested in the welfare of their children.

"I don't remember that radio advertising was ever mentioned," he said at one point.

Then he said, however, in the realistic manner of a practical advertising man, "Like anyone else who wants business, they will entertain you. That's all I could see."

Finally Mr. Blackett was asked what he thought was the common interest that elicited the invitation.

"After all," I suggested, "they knew you weren't a tailor."

"I assume, like anyone else, you know what I mean," he said. "I don't have to spell it out for you. I have been entertained by lots of people who wanted business."

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 6—It is a touchy subject that has stirred much comment in the civilian press and in Stars and Stripes, but MGM is jumping in feet first. I mean the subject of the temptation that comes to an attractive wife whose husband has been long overseas.

The title is "The Great Temptation" (which is certainly to the point) and it is particularly interesting Greer Garson will be the tempted lady and Robert Montgomery the gent she finds so attractive. This will be the first time Greer and Bob have co-starred. The story of "The Great Temptation" has long interested Producer Arthur Hornblow. I remember it was months ago he told me about it at a party. So far the movies have skirted this subject, but with Arthur at the helm and Greer and Bob in the star roles, you can bet it will be handled in good taste.

ONCE AGAIN Charles Bickford and Jennifer Jones will emote together in a movie, but with their characterizations greatly reversed. In their first film, "Song of Bernadette," Jennifer was a saint and Bickford a priest. Now he steps into the role of Sam, a ranch hand, in "Duel in the Sun," in a highly romantic part, and believe me, Jennifer's role is no part of a saint. They say the love scenes with Gregory Peck are so torrid the screen will have to be asbestos or (as Tommy Dorsey says) "The Next Asbestos!"

HARRY COHN told Mary Pickford that Leslie Fenton had done a good job on "Pardon My Past," his first independent released by Columbia. Mary, acting on the theory that seeing is believing, took a look at the Fenton movie and signed Leslie pronto to act as producer-director of "There Goes Lona Henry." Mary and Hedy Lamarr, by the way, didn't get together on "Lona." Mary tells me she is using a girl who can talk a Southern accent. What about Mrs. Y. Frank Freeman dubbing in for the Southern voice? She has the cutest accent in Hollywood.

LT. JACKIE COOGAN called me as soon as he landed in town. He did a wonderful job with the Air Force, but now he is out of uniform and ready to settle down to business life. He says he and Allan Gordon, publicist, are buying a commercial air field and he will also return to the movies. Now I hear Jackie is stepping out of one uniform into another to play a role in "Task Force," Warners' film history of naval aviation, produced by Jerry Wald and Delmar Daves. Tom Andrea, who served with Coogan in the Air Force and is one of his closest friends, arranged the deal and also wrote Coogan's special role.

Well, Com. Dempsey is back in the old house. Estelle rented it to him because he is stationed near here and will be at San Pedro most of the time. He has brought his two girls, Joan, 11, and Barbara, 9, to live with him. In telling me about it he said: "It's so near the Immaculate Heart Convent they can walk right there." The girls will start school in the fall and make California their home. Now it would not surprise me if Estelle and Jack remarried.

FALCON LAIR, the famed house where Rudolph Valentino lived, will be the scene of May Mann's wedding to Alfred Leon on Aug. 26. Joan Romero, who bought the house and then sold it to Ann Harding, sold it with the provision that May, a picture writer and once "Miss Utah," could be married in the Valentino memorial shrine on the grounds. May was an avid Valentino fan. She will be married by Bishop Stanford G. Smith of the Mormon Church. Mrs. Cobina Wright, who is in charge of arrangements, will be matron of honor; Kay Williams and Maria Montez, the bridesmaids, and Joe E. Brown is giving away the bride. Juan Romero will be best man.

WHY CLIFFORD ODETS isn't directing "All Brides Are Beautiful" I don't know. I do know he wrote the story, but John Berry is the lad who will direct Joan Fontaine. He was borrowed from Paramount for "D-Day in Las Vegas," but that picture isn't being made, so now Berry (lucky lad) gets Joan Fontaine. He's one of our younger directors and one who seems to be making big strides. I have to argue with RKO when they tell me Odets was never mentioned to direct the Fontaine picture. They gave it to me for the column.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Mrs. Charlie Chaplin is buying maternity gowns at the anticipation shop. Yes, it's another baby; Socialite Jan Miller, whose husband is Lionel Stander, movie actor, expects the stork in March; Buff Cobb Chapman and Robert Walker have been having a few quiet dates together; Mrs. Eddie Robinson is a proud grandmother. Her daughter had an eight-pound daughter and Gladys has gone to the hospital near Camp Roberts to see her; Arline Judge's brother, John, and his wife, who separated a few months ago, were reconciled at Arline's wedding to Morgan Ryan and have called off their divorce; Mrs. Townsend Netcher (Norma Hall) has had tests made at one of the studios and is trying for a movie career; Casey Robinson sold his share of Gregory Peck. What I mean is he sold Peck's contract to M-G-M for a quarter million dollars.

their best bib and tucker, as well as the ladies; the garden looked like a movie set, it was so beautiful. Everyone was there. Bubbles Schinasi, who just arrived in town, was there with Arthur Hornblow, so I guess that's all on again. Anita Colby brought her pretty sister. Clark Gable stagged it, but he wasn't alone long. Franchot Tone's brother, who has arrived in town, came with him and Mrs. Tone, who expects her baby any day. Charlie Feldman introduced Marlene, who made a very gracious sincere speech.

THE MOST generous alimony on record is said to come from Bob Haymes, Dick's brother. He is giving his wife 45 per cent of his earnings, a $50,000 insurance policy and their home. Looks like he won't have anything left: the Ronald Colmans came down from Montecito, opened their house and gave Richard Barthelmess a party. He was only here 24 hours and divided his time between the Witham Powells and the Colmans. He says he doesn't know when his daughter Mary is getting married. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—I am about to betray a vital military secret and if I am condemned to Leavenworth or Atlanta I hope you will send me nourishing broths and jellies. Of course, if they shoot me, just send some putty to plug up the holes.

Gen. Arnold

I am about to reveal the sinister truth behind the failure of America's new flying marvel, the jet-propelled P-80, to take off the other day in a projected demonstration by the Army Air Forces.

All sorts of weird stories have been circulated, but they are but figments of the imagination. I prefer ripe figments to fried figments, don't you?

THE DEMONSTRATION of the new single-seat fighter, which is also known as the Shooting Star, was scheduled for shortly after noon at the National airport. Upward of 50 newspapermen, shepherded by a stern array of Army brass hats, were led onto the field.

They were shown the wondrous ship, gaped over its absence of propellers, and nodded understandingly when told they must print nothing unless cleared by Army censors.

The heat was terrible—a superfluous comment to make in Washington. Several baldheaded journalists got scalp sunburns that will probably remain with them half the winter. In fact, one distinguished baldpate got so scorched a curious soldier came up to him and asked:

"Just to settle an argument with a couple of my buddies here—what color were you before you were broiled?"

The ship, which does 550 miles an hour and better, was announced in readiness for the take off. Half an hour passed. Then an hour. Then two hours. Meanwhile Army messengers were coming and going—and the brass hats were palpably disturbed.

The first rumor to start the rounds was that the ship couldn't take off because of the weather. This gained a large measure of credence because the weather was—and had been for weeks—atrocious.

THEN A COUPLE of lady reporters, Miss Mary Pauline Perry and Mrs. Martha LeFevre Smith, went noseying around and came back with a hot one of their own. They said no planes were being allowed to take off because Gen. H. H. (Hap) Arnold, head of the Army Air Forces, was expected momentarily from Potsdam.

The Lady Hawkshaws said they had discovered this after spying Mrs. Hap Arnold in the Administration building. It seems they braced the general's frau and learned she was waiting around for her old man.

They had the story half right. Gen. Arnold did arrive from Potsdam, in a big C-54, but he bustled right away from the airport.

Nevertheless, the new P-80 still failed to take off. Finally the reporters were told the demonstration would be postponed. The brass hats were deadly mysterious about the reason.

But the Army Air Forces have just given me the dark lowdown. The P-80, as you doubtless know, runs on kerosene.

And, in the great National airport, there was practically every known type of motor fuel—but not one drop of kerosene!

* * *

THE SITUATION was so fraught with poignancy it inspired me to this beautiful, haunting poem:

My darling Ethyl,
Lovely queen.
If you were only
Kerosene!

ASKED WHAT he thought of the British political trend, as manifested in the recent elections, Richard Miles, of Britain's diplomatic corps, replied in the stirring words of Stephen Decatur:

"My country—Right or Left!"

THAT STURDY old yachtsman, Mr. Sam O'Neal, publicity director for the Democratic national committee, was sailing on the Patomac the other Sunday. Rain pitchforked down but the gallant old salt stood by the helm. Naturally, he got very wet.

Just about sunset the sun came out—which is about what you'd expect under a Democratic administration—and Old Skipper O'Neal went below to change his soaking raiment. He came up all beautiful and dry.

Just then a big power boat went by, sending up waves that drenched Mr. O'Neal all over again. He was about to shake his fist at it when its passengers chorused:

"Hiya, Sammy!"

Mr. O'Neal looked again and decided not to do any fist-shaking. Lining the craft's deck were gentlemen Mr. O'Neal does not shake his fist at—Postmaster General Bob Hannegan, who is also the Democratic committee's national chairman (Sam's Boss); Secretary of the Treasury Fred Vinson, and Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal.

The big skiff was the Navy Secretary's official yacht!

Boston After Dark

MONDAY MUSINGS: Along with 23,000 other baseball fans, your correspondent thrilled at the Sunday doubleheader to the magic of a fine voice . . . It didn't belong to Leo "Lippy" Durocher nor to Umpire Bill Stewart, both of whom are vocal enough on occasions to be impressive . . . It was the voice of the vocalist of a ragtailed miscellany of musicians, jitterbugs, drum majors and clowns who travel (when they can afford the fare) with the Brooklyn Bums, or Dodgers.

THIS VOCALIST sang two songs, "Saturday Night" and "When Irish Eyes are Smiling" . . . He sang without any organized accompaniment and his clear, beautiful tenor reached to the last rows of the grandstand, and bounced back to the bleachers with the help of the public address system . . . The wonderment that struck this department on hearing a voice like that, centered chiefly on the miracle that has kept the singer—a resident of Brooklyn, which is part of New York (and we're not being flippant)—out of show business.

THE VOICE should have been a sensation, and long before this . . . Tracking down the whys and wherefores, here's the explanation . . . The singer's name is Sal (for Salvatore) Ferraro . . . He is a clothmaker in the Brooklyn Navy Yard . . . A son of a very strict and attentive sire, Sal—it seems—has so much of the true filial spirit that he consults his father on every move he makes.

THE SENIOR Ferrara, apparently is opposed to such frivolous occupations as singing for a living . . . Which, in view of the Ferrara membership in the race which gave the world the great Enrico Caruso, is slightly fantastic . . . We wrote this little piece today with the thought that Mr. Ferrara, Sr., might relent his stern attitude a bit . . . His son has twice the voice that a kid named Frankie Sinatra has, and an intriguing personality . . . Frankie Sinatra has acquitted himself quite well in the singing racket . . . We hope that Salvatore Ferrara will ask his dad's permission, with these few paragraphs to bolster his cause, to take up singing professionally.

THE HUGE DISTILLERY DEAL which saw a famous New England firm change hands for a reputed $21,000,000 has had a curious aftermath . . . After the deal, the partners of 25 years association, had a falling out . . . Prior to this disagreement, they flipped a coin to determine which of them sould retain a minor distillery in Greater Boston which had not been included in the $21,000,000 transaction, but which they held jointly as part of their whisky empire . . . Well, the partner who won the minor distillery has gone along successfully in the distilling business . . . The other partner remained inactive.

WITHIN the past few days, however, the inactive partner has come back into the liquor picture locally in sharp focus . . . For he has bought back the original company which he and his erstwhile partner made a New England byword . . . The sum he paid for it is said to be a small fraction of what the booming business was sold for when its vats and storehouses were filled with whisky at the height of the war boom . . . The intriguing part of the deal is that the two former partners (and close friends) now are rivals . . . The rivalry promises to be bitter.

LIBERATED by his comrades of the American Army on May 1, after 22 months in German prison camps, Lt. Leonard D'Addesio, a Boston certified public accountant in private life and a resident of Needham, was married Sunday to his former secretary, Miss Sophie Subjack of Jamaica Plain . . . The ceremony was performed in Blessed Sacrament Church, Jamaica Plain, and the couple and 25 friends enjoyed a reception at the Fox and Hounds . . . Lt. D'Addesio declined from his fighting weight of 205 pounds to 136 pounds while in the Nazis' prison camp . . . He is nearing normal weight now, with 184 pounds on his frame.

Cleanses, Tones the Skin

Beauty

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

IT'S ALL RIGHT to sit in your office all week and day-dream about the week-end ahead of you at the wind-swept shore . . . or the forest-cooled lake . . . but how about those five days in every summer week when you're wilted, warm and woeful? And usually day-dreaming doesn't do very much to alleviate the discomfort as you probably know from experience.

But those five working days . . . so hard and harrowing on the face that cries for ocean fanning . . . can be made considerably cooler and more comfortable for you, too with just a minimum of effort

When perspiration and city grime combine to play havoc with your otherwise clear complexion . . . when you look and you know you look droopy . . . draw out of your desk drawer a jar of a noted complexion cream and let your face have it We're sure the boss won't mind if you freshen up . . . for he, too, likes to gaze upon a fresh, bright, cool face. It perks him, too

All types of skin need extra care during the warm summer months . . . or did you think summer was over . . . and that means that we girls working in offices must remove all that hot, sticky make-up . . . come the middle of the day and start over again. A noon-day cosmetic luncheon for the face is equally as beneficial as a cool drink pickup for a dry tongue.

And this feather-light, wonderfully efficient complexion cream is an ideal cleanser, toner and softener. For that after-office-hours date, tennis, movies or a tall, iced drink at the adjoining soda-fountain counter . . . you'll have a daisy fresh face for the festivities ahead.

LITTLE BEAUTY TIP

And, while we're about it . . here's a little beauty trick that minimizes your all-over melting sensation . . . or don't you mind the heat as much as we do? Several times during the day . . . dab a honey-colored lotion on your wrists, your elbows, the back of your neck. Clear and sparkling . . . this lotion has just the bracing, refreshing effect you and I both yearn for when the sun is hot and high. And, if your skin is excessively oily . . . this lotion will be like manna from heaven if used regularly on the face and neck after every cleaning.

This little routine will keep you on high during those five working days . . . and before you know it another week will have taken wings . . . and you'll be off for that haven at the lake or heaven by the sea.

For the names of this ideal heat-breaking complexion cream and bracing lotion, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope

"BY THE SEA, by the sea, by the beautiful sea, you and me, you and me, oh how happy we'll be" . . . is a little ditty that has more truth than poetry in hot summer days . . . but for fair and cooler feeling during those five working days let an ideal complexion cream and a bracing lotion take the place of that anticipated glorious week-end at the wind-swept shore to tide you over and keep you refreshingly lovely . . . like Warner star Marjorie Riordan . . . until you're on your way for an ocean dip.

Best Love Is Unspoken

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I met a soldier six weeks ago and have been dating him for four weeks. He is now going to school at a near-by Army post and in three weeks will graduate. Then he will go to his home on a furlough

He calls me often and comes out on Sunday, which is his only day off. He is very quiet and easy to get along with. He had a girl friend at home with whom he had gone for two years. But when he left for the Army she started going with a sailor, and when he found it out he quit her. He never mentions her to me

I like him very much and don't intend to treat him as this other girl did, when he leaves. He has never said what he thinks of me and we get along fine. When he has no money he says so and we stay at home. Now I'm wondering if he'll go back to that other girl when he goes home on furlough. What do you think? B. T

I like what you tell me about this young soldier; that he has taken up a course at school and gone through with it shows that he has plenty of character. So many young people, both in and out of the Army, take courses and then lack the initiative to finish.

I don't think you'll have anything to fear from the girl who left him for a sailor. That he's never said what he thinks of you should cause no uneasiness. Don't you know they say the best love is the unspoken?

Relishes Add Plenty of Zest to Everyday Meals

By MARTHA LEE

WHEN FLAVORFUL FOODS like meat and cheese are in short supply, relishes can do a great deal to add zest to everyday meals. Everyone knows how appetizing a good relish is with cold cuts, and some of them are very quickly and easily made —even without cooking, in some cases.

Here are two recipes for easy, uncooked relishes to make up now from Victory Garden vegetables, and to keep on hand in the refrigerator for summer meals

GARDEN RELISH

2 qts. (about 12 to 14 medium-sized) chopped, peeled tomatoes
1 cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
2 tsp. salt
3 tsp. sugar
1 tbsp. mustard seed
½ tsp. ground nutmeg
¾ tsp. ground cinnamon
½ tsp. ground cloves
1 cup vinegar

Combine all ingredients and stir until well blended. Pour into clean jars and cover. In the refrigerator this relish will keep 2 or 3 weeks. Makes about 3 pints

CUCUMBER RELISH

2 medium-sized cucumbers
2 tbsp. chopped pimiento
2 tsp. grated onion
1 tsp. salt
Few grains pepper
¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
¼ cup vinegar

Grate cucumbers with a coarse grater or cut in julienne strips. Wrap in a piece of cheesecloth and wring dry. place in a bowl and add remaining ingredients. Chill thoroughly. Drain before serving. Serve with fish or veal. Makes about 2 cups.

RAW APPLE RELISH

3 tart apples
1 green pepper
1 sweet red pepper
1 small onion
2 stalks celery
1½ tsp. salt
⅔ cup sugar
1-3 cup lemon juice

Chop apples, peppers, onion and celery. Add remaining ingredients. Cover and chill thoroughly. Makes about 3 cups.

GARDEN SPECIAL

4 qts. ripe tomatoes
1 qt. celery
1 qt. onions
1 qt. water
6 sweet peppers
3 tbsp. salt
2 tbsp. sugar

Dice peppers, onions, and celery (coarse stalks and leaves may be used), add water, and cook together for 20 minutes. Add tomatoes which have been peeled and cut up, seasonings, and after it all comes to a boil, put into clean hot jars, and process in hot water bath for 30 minutes for quart jars or 25 minutes for pints.

In the winter, use the above relish for a one-dish meal, prepared as follows:

1 pint garden special
½ lb. ground steak, fried, or scraps of cold meat
2 cups cooked spaghetti, rice, or cold diced potato

Put in layers in baking dish and cook in oven until well heated through. This makes 4 large or 6 small servings.

Big Sleeves for Fall

By BETTINA BEDWELL

SLEEVES come in different shapes in the new fur coat fashions. Anything goes so long as they're big. And Esther Dorothy, who brought out the balloon sleeve, has another this Fall, a new whopper that she calls the "tricorne" sleeve because it's triangular. It is a variant of the balloon sleeve, as you can see by consulting our sketch.

This smart coat is made of black Alaska sealskin and for the final touch of luxury it is trimmed with white mink. The white mink makes the long stole revers that plunge down the coat closing from the neck to the hemline. The sleeves are triangular where they bulge the most below the elbows, as Miss Dulin's drawing shows.

Esther Dorothy makes fur topknots to go with all her coats this Fall, and the one sketched is a white mink snood, which is an all-time high in snood luxury, if you ask me.

Fashion

A TOWERING toque of elegant black velvet is Madame Reine's contribution to the new hat scene for fall. The black mesh face veil . . . extending high over the edges of the velvet . . . is caught at one side with a cluster of black covered beads. The hat is a barometer of the times . . . expressing the high hopes and optimism for the future—R. M.

"I wuz thinkin'...."

by Izzy Ort

that it makes a guy feel great to have letters, cards and souvenirs comin' in every day from boys overseas, boys who visited me here in me popular Essex street Grille and like to remember it as one of the many symbols of "back home" that keep flashin' across their minds. Such demonstrayshuns of friendship makes yers truely feel that runnin' a buzzness day in, and day out, is sumthin' more than jess a matter of balance sheets and supply problems and help worries and another way of makin' a livin'. Yessir, that steady flow of mail from the boys over there makes me feel that me Grille is reely important, even if only in the sense that its memory and the memories of fun and good fellowship experienced here gives a little nostalgic relief to those kids out there givin' all they've got to git the world back in line again. Yessir boys, I appreciate every letter, every card, every word you send, and I'm hopin' and prayin' that each and every one of you and yer buddies will be back again some day soon so I kin shake yer hands again right here in the Grille where you had so much fun . . . Fokes, every time I think of what those kids are doin' fer us, I wanna do sumthin' to help. So right now I'm goin' out and buy a bond. How about you? Ort's Grille.

Margo, Eddie Albert Plan March to Altar

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 6 (AP)—Margarite Bolado, known in the movies as Margo, and actor Eddie Albert have the same postwar plan. Theyre going to be married shortly after conclusion of a New York play in which the actress is to appear.

Margo was divorced from actor Francis Lederer in 1940.

Secret Bomb Plant Built Hamlet to City of 75,000

OAK RIDGE, Tenn., Aug. 6 (AP)—The story of how in three years this previously nearly rural community has grown to a city with a population of nearly 75,000—fifth largest in Tennessee—was released by the Army today, following a Washington announcement of atome bomb production.

Clinton Engineer Works is the name of the plant in which the superbombs just released on the Japs are being produced, with many new employes living in Oak Ridge and other thousands commuting from other communities.

The atomic bomb project here was camouflaged under the name of the Manhattan Engineer District, but reference to this or to the Clinton Engineer Works in news stories was frowned on. Although residents knew a vast secret war plant was being built ideas of the work being done and the size of the project remained extremely vague.

Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, in Washington, and Col. Kenneth D. Nichols at Oak Ridge supervised this new industrial empire, bringing in thousands of workers who did a job and then went on to other places under caution not to discuss what they had done.

More permanent residents of Oak Ridge, including the actual plant workers and their families were kept without knowledge of just where their part fitted into the war effort.

The several plants in the restricted area were kept isolated and secrecy extended to the point that the head of one plant did not know what was going on in another plant.

Europe Holds No Charm For the U. S. Soldier

By AUSTEN LAKE

Austen Lake

WOULD IT HELP IF THE ARMY head doctors, who are so quick to tag battle-sick soldiers with such polysyllabic labels as "psychoneurosis," were called to examine our Congressmen for the psychosis known as "spendthrift dementia"?

Now comes Sen. Downey of California as midwife to a bill called the "Service Man's Tourist Act," proposing 50 per cent-free trips to Europe for any veteran and family who wish to view the bomb-ruins. The government would pay half and the veteran 'tuther half; the dual object being (1) to give the vets a cheap, cultural junket and (2) to yield the foreign governments needed dollar credits with which to buy in our markets. No kidding!

By a brilliant burst of arithmetic the Senator figures, "If the veteran spends only $200 while abroad, this would mean THREE BILLIONS accruing to the foreign governments." The Senator bases his estimate on the notion that "fifteen million people would, as a result, go abroad for what is often the first time in their lives." Ladeez 'n' genemum, I give this as a sample of the frivolity which often pervades that compendium of wit, wonder and whatnot known as the "Congressional Record."

A Worm's-Eye View of Europe

THERE IS MUCH MORE. But let it go at that. Let's challenge the distinguished Senator's premise that 15,000,000 service-eligible people will want to visit Europe for ANY reason. When J-V Day comes the veteran will have one idea—to grab himself a job and recuperate the family finances. The seven million veterans who have seen service abroad don't care a tinker's cuss about Europe's tourist beauties. They were rarely impressed by its antique surroundings. They had small concern for historic memories. Their average vision of foreign countries has been a worm's-eye view from foxholes, fields and ditches. I've talked with thousands of our guys, and they unanimously vote the same.

Reduced to a common opinion they said, "Perhaps Europe IS beautiful—with its neatly barbered hedges, its orderly forests, its crazy-quilt farm fields, the winding ribbons of roads bordered by poplars—yet seen through our etherized state of mind and our gradual numbness of perception Europe is UGLY, repugnant and loathsome." What they wanted to see, and see lots of it, was their own United States. And that type of touring, of course, would defeat Senator Downey's dream of netting foreign nations many U. S. billions in dollar credits.

I doubt that any American soldier gave much thought to the esthetic side of the old world, where only today was possessed and tomorrow never came. To him it was just land, trees and towns which whirled under his wheels in blurred panoramas, or under his feet as so much muck, slush and snow. The swirling gusts of sleet held no picture postcard beauty. He rarely knew the names of the villages where he was quartered. They had no more personal meaning than the unpronounceable names on a map. For his days were framed between sun and moon, or gray-dawn and indigo-dark. Time hung suspended! Hardship had anesthetized his senses! Beauty, history, legend, tradition. Faugh!

I used to think, during prewar visits, that the forests of France, Luxembourg, Belgium and Germany were eyefilling stretches of cool greens or snowy innocence, suggestive of the elves at play. Their well-kept, bearded dignity seemed designed to soothe the tourist's eye. But during the war those woodlands held a sinister meaning for all soldiery, a feeling that lay somewhere between menace and despair, as though they were reservoirs of evil—which they often were.

They Hated It, One and All!

OUR MEN TRAVELLED, MIXED and mingled through that country with sensations of cockleburrs under their skins, never knowing when the banjo twang of an enemy bullet might fly from yonder sylvan copse. There was no poesy or folklore suggestive of Hansel und Gretel, or the Erl King or the Gingerbread Boy to those frostbitten, gunk-smeared, unshaven and hungry GIs, whose philosophy was summed up in a four-word epigram, "Tuh hell with it."

There were towns where the soldiers walked among middle century scenes in which the second stories overlapped the sidewalks and houses had sway-backed roofs and timbered fronts. Street cobbles were grooved with ancient wagon ruts. Rush-roofed cottages, like yokels grown shaggy around the neckband and in need of haircuts, leaned against each other for mutual support. There civilization was old when the Indians owned Manhattan. And the GI hated it all—hated it with a bitter internal acid that scalded his soul.

There was Coblenz among the many corpses of German cities. I had an old guide book which delineated the prewar glories. "The rooms of the museum are decorated regally and remain in their original splendor with handsome furnishings by Januarius." Januarius should see them now! The museum looks like the excavation for a subway. Most of Germany's big towns resemble the prehistoric ruins of the cliff dwellers—nests of rubbish filled walls, houses with frameless windows like the empty sockets in a skull, avalanches of fallen masonry that make morbid valleys in the streets, shattered shade trees and scores of dumpland wastes.

The soldiery hated all that, too. Not that this is to give our boys a dull character. They had been kept so strenuously busy, and lived amid terror so long, that occasional leisure meant only a cozy spot to sip some brew, or shoot the breeze, or promote congenial company (feminine preferred).

Let the bearded antiquarians putter among their musty relics. Let the 16th century clock clang its mournful memories. Come, pal, let's get t'ell out of here and back to God's country. "We ain't tourists," they say. And they weren't! So Senator Downey's tourist bill is so much oratory in a rain barrel. I doubt that he'd get 1500 GI's to travel 100 per cent-free to Europe—much less 15,000,000 at 50 per cent.

Braves Start Rolling Under Del Bissonette

By BILL GRIMES

One week ago today, Bob Coleman resigned as manager of the Braves and Del Bissonette played a long shot. He gambled his baseball future that he could get the club rolling again, after it had lost nine straight.

Since Bissonette has been in charge, the Braves have played better than .500 ball, five wins against four defeats. They should have won the Giants' series in New York, but due to Mort Cooper's wildness, the Ottman grabbed the odd game. However, they have taken four out of six from the Dodgers and look as though they still may be able to go places.

Del Bissonette

Manager Bissonette was all set to shake up his lineup for the second game of yesterday's double header. He had been told that Tom Seats was going to pitch for the Dodgers. So, he made up his lineup with Bill Ramsey in left field and Tommy Nelson at third base. Seats is a southpaw and Bissonette was going to bench two left hand hitters, "Butch" Nieman and "Chuck" Workman. But, Manager Leo Durocher started the veteran Curt Davis, so, Bissonette stuck to his regulars, who did all right by him and Bob Logan.

The Dodgers, except in the one-hitter pitched by Hal Gregg on Friday and Art Herring's two-hitter yesterday, haven't looked any more like a major league ball club than the Braves did last week at Ebbetts Field.

Bill Lee pitched shutout ball for seven innings in the opening game at Brooklyn. But, with one out in the eighth, and the Braves leading 2 to 0, Babe Herman, who is 42 years old and runs on dead legs, hit a routine grounder at Frankie Drews, who hurried his throw and pulled Vince Shupe off the bag.

Naturally, Lee was upset and the bases were loaded when Stanky singled and Rosen walked. Mort Cooper replaced Lee and Galan scored Hart, who ran for Herman, with a fly to Gillenwater. But, the Braves were still out in front 2 to 1, with two away.

Then came the play of plays. Dixie Walker hit one to left center. Gillenwater and Nieman raced over to make the catch. At the last moment, Nieman decided to let Gillenwater make the putout. But, there wasn't any putout, for Nieman ran in front of Gillenwater, the ball hit on the heel of "Gilly's" glove and bounced out for a game-winning two-base hit.

There is just one sample of how the Braves blew games in Brooklyn and the Dodgers have looked just a "sugar bush" here. Luis Olmo's exhibition of base running in the second frame of yesterday's nightcap compared very favorably with Nieman's darting in front of Gillenwater at Ebbetts Field. On a ball hit against the right field barrier by "Frenchy" Bordagaray, Olmo was lucky to make second base and the Dodgers lost an opportunity to score enough runs in that inning to put the verdict on ice. However, they never recovered from that shock and dropped a 10 to 1 decision to Bob Logan, who after losing six straight, has won two games in as many days.

Jim Tobin will take another fling at the Dodgers tomorrow. He has lost five in a row, because his mates haven't been able to get him any runs. He will be opposed by Ralph Branca, who was credited with a win last week when Nieman put on that trick play but was beaten by Ed Wright last Friday.

Bulletin

The sixth game of the series between theh Braves and Dodgers was postponed today because of rain. Both teams have an open date tomorrow, so the Dodgers will remain here and play the game off with the Braves.

Dodgers Option Schultz

Howie Schultz, Brooklyn's reserve first baseman, was released to Montreal under option today. The Dodgers are expected to acquire a pitcher from Montreal in a few days.

Helis Has Star Entry in $50,000 Mass. Handicap

By JACK CONWAY

NOW THAT William G. Helis' Elpis has won the $10,000 Hannah Dustin Handicap Suffolk Downs racegoers have turned their attention to the $25,000 Mayflower Stakes that will be run on Wednesday and the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap that will be staged on Saturday.

Wm. G. Helis

These races have attracted national interest in view of the fact the class of the two-year-olds will compete in the Mayflower Stakes and the best of the handicap horses will strive for honors in the Massachusetts Handicap.

Elpis, carrying 112 pounds, had too much class for her rivals in the Hannah Dustin Handicap. I met Tom Fappas, close friend of William G. Helis, in the walking ring before the race. He was one of the many Boston and New England racegoers who felt Elpis would win in impressive styles. The Helis thoroughbred did not disappoint her followers. She secured an early lead and maintained her advantage until she crossed the mythical finish line.

The Suffolk Downs meeting will close tomorrow. The National War Fund, Inc., will take over on Wednesday. It will receive all of the profits of the final four days of the meeting. It is expected that $250,000 will be raised for charity.

Mayflower Stakes

THERE WILL be a classy field of two-year-olds in the Mayflower Stakes. This event has attracted some of the better two-year-olds. Included in the list of two-year-olds expected to start are Max Wesler's Lady Gunner, Fred Wyze's Air Rate, W. W. Adams' entry of Moonbeam and Harrier, J. S. Braswell's Labouliaye, O. B. Burgher's Token Advice, R. W. Collins' General Don, T. B. Cromwell's Shifty Play, Four Star Stable's Steel Reigh, H. C. Center's Pay Me, Mrs. John T. Hertz' entry of Little Rolo and Stud Poker, Reynolds' Bros.' Tascoa and Albert Venezia's Mil El.

Mrs. Weston W. Adams' Side Boy, trained by the capable George Alexandra, will receive a great deal of backing in the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap on Saturday. Side Boy has been brought along carefully for this race and he is expected to show at his best.

Ray Metcalf insists Spangled Game will be the horse to come down in front. Spangled Game is sharp once more and he is sure to give a good account of himself on Saturday.

Other horses that will probably start in the $50,000 classic are Arcard and Laurin's Valdina Craft, M. Belasco's Easy Chance, William G. Helis' Rounders and Olympic Zenith, C. F. Hermann's Float Me, Ben F. Lister's Eternity, M. Marmorstein's First Fuddle and Sandy Lane's Farm Dinner Party.

With good weather, Suffolk Downs on Saturday is expected to establish a new record for attendance and mutuel handle. It is the first time the Massachusetts Handicap has ever been held on a Saturday.

Heavyweight Surprise

ONE OF THE biggest fistic surprises of the year occurred at Camden, N. J. when Jersey Joe Walcott of Merchantville, N. J. scored a decisive ten-round victory over Joe Baksi of New York, second ranking war time heavyweight. Paul Cavalier, former heavyweight who used to be a sparring partner for Jack Sharkey, was referee. There were not any judges and Cavalier's decision, received with cheers, was the deciding factor.

There were only 3500 persons at the bout. It was supposed to be a routine affair for Baksi who was 10 to 1 favorite. The result proved that anything can happen when two heavyweights sweep into action.

While Walcott was trouncing Baksi at Camden, N. J., Tippy Larkin proved he still possesses all of his former ring class when he returned to the fistic wars to outscore Willie Joyce. Larkin has shown in Boston rings. He is exceptionally fast and possesses one of the best hands in the boxing game. At 138 pounds, Larkin carried his full strength and power into the ring.

80-Day Hunting Season Stays

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (INS) Secretary of the Interior Ickes today continued the 80-day season on mallards, pintails, and widgeons, but cancelled the additional daily bag of five, in announcing the new 1945 hunting regulations.

Ickes also extended the post-season period for possession of migratory game birds from 45 to 90 days.

The new waterfowl hunting season begins Sept. 20 in the northern zone, Oct. 13 in the intermediate zone, and November 2 in the southern zone.

The season for hunting coot beyond the outer narbors in Maine and New Hampshire will be Sept. 15 to Sept. 19, in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, including Long Island, and Rhode Island, from Sept. 15 to Oct. 12, and thereafter from land or water during state open seasons for other waterfowl.

Open seasons for wild ducks, geese, brant and coots include:

Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, Sept. 20 to Dec. 8.

Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York (except portions of Essex, Clinton and Washington counties) including Long Island, Pennylvania, Rhode Island, Oct. 13 to Dec. 31.

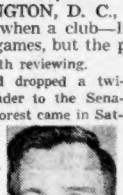
Rookie Ty LaForest Gives Red Sox Color

By HUCK FINNEGAN

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 6—There isn't much to enthuse over when a club—like the Red Sox—is losing six out of seven games, but the play of third base Rookie "Ty" Laforest is worth reviewing.

The Sox had dropped a twi-night doubleheader to the Senators Friday. Laforest came in Saturday morning sleepy and dusty after a 17-hour ride from Louisville.



George Woods

He was a picture—a throw back to the days when Doc Gautreau and his clan were playing semi-pro ball in No. Cambridge. He stood in the lobby of the swank Statler Hotel, greeting boys he had known in the minors—Fred Walters, Dave Ferriss, Randy Heflin, Vic Johnson.

Shirt open at the neck, monkey suit, roll in hand with two bats protruding like javelins. Two of his front teeth were missing, as his easy grin revealed.

He was showing the boys an abrasion on his right forearm, reaching from elbow to wrist. How did he get it?

"Chasing a pig," he said, and he wasn't kidding. Just before he left Louisville, an "appreciation night" was held, something in the order of a "rent party." Various contests are held so the players can scramble for a few extra bucks.

"I caught him," said LaForest, referring to the porker, "and carried him about 50 yards. Sure it was worth it. I collected about 40 bucks for the night."

Ready for a fight or a frolic is LaForest, christened Byron. But right now he will confine himself to third basing. And it looks as if he'll stay on the Sox hot corner for the duration, if he keeps hitting.

"I don't know much about third-basing," he admitted, "I played outfield at Scranton in '43 and six positions for Louisville this year." He hit .304 for Scranton, batted in 104 runs. He was leading the Association in batting when he joined the Sox. He keeps an eye on Cronin when he's in the field and hasn't made a mistake yet.

In four games with the Senators here (three of which the Sox lost) LaForest proved: (1) That he's as fast as Culberson, Case or Myatt; (2) That he's a scrappy kid like Gautreau, at his best in the pinches; (3) That he can bunt; (4) That he can throw the ball across the diamond and isn't afraid to let it go.

Hit? A "bucket" hitter like Al Simmons but he grabs the bat at the handle and protects the plate. He's hit safely in every game (6 in 18 trips) and all his hits have been either bunts or to right field. He's scored four runs, has two RBI and two stolen bases. Can he pull? That remains to be seen.

He's made some sparkling plays at the hot corner, has started several D. P.'s and has added a dash of color and life to a club that can stand several more transfusions. Boston fans will go wild over him, especially if he keeps hitting.

Manager McCarthy Still on Ailing List

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 6 (INS)—Joe McCarthy's condition was improved today but he has not recovered enough to warrant his immediate return to his job as manager of the New York Yankees, his physician said today.

The physician, Dr. Arthur J. Burkel, declared McCarthy has said "nothing that would indicate he does not plan on returning to New York."

Park Class B Play Tomorrow Night

At the South Boston Stadium, tomorrow night, the Linehan Club will play host to the Crosby Club of Roxbury in the opening game of the "B" series, in a two out of three battle. Crosby will depend on his ace twirlers, Larry Guilfoyle and Ed "Schoolboy" Rowe, while Bill Benson, pilot of the Linehan Club, will have George McCafferty or Joe Cunningham doing the chucking for the boys from the peninsular district.

On Tuesday night these clubs will again match wits at the Fens Stadium, Roxbury.

The Roslindale T. T. will entertain the McCarthy Club of South Boston at Fallon Field, Roslindale, in the third game of the evening, also a two out of three contest, to determine the winners of the Class "C" series. Festivities will be resumed at the Lee Playground, South Boston, on Tuesday night, the home of the McCarthy Club.

Our Boys Come Home—We've seen plenty of pictures of the GI's arriving back at American shores, but here's a shot of what happens at the other end of the line. These troops are lined up at Le Havre, France, for a short ride out into the harbor and transfer from LCT's to awaiting troopships.
